Germany is reported to have sent 12 to 15 divisions, totalling 180,000 to 225,000 troops, rolling through Bulgaria toward the Turkish and Greek borders. With Bulgaria's entrenched army facing the Turks in the west, Germany's main advance is to the southwest corner of Bulgaria, threatening Greece's Macedonean armies and the vital port of Salonika.

British-Norse Troops Take 225 Prisoners In Lofoten Assault

Joint Communique Of British Admiralty and Norway Government In London Tells Results Of Attack

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS

LONDON, March 6.—(BUP)—British and Norwegian naval forces, British troops and Norwegian marines, in an audacious raid on the Norwegian Lofoten Islands Tuesday, captured 215 German and 10 Norwegian "Quisling" prisoners, destroyed 11 ships of a total of 18,000 tons and a big glycerine plant, and killed one German naval officer and six men, it was announced today.

The British and Norwegian forces landed a big supply of food, soap, cigarets, clothing and other comforts for the islanders and brought back with them a "considerable number" of Norwegian patriots who wanted to fight for their country, the British and Norwegian admiralties said in a joint communique.

Steaming up beyond the Arctic Circle, the British and Norwegian forces made a surprise attack in the best British naval tradition

NOT ONE CASUALTY

They came back without a single casualty and not a bit of damage to their ships, it was asserted, having accomplished with "complete success" three objectives—to destroy a fish oil plant which was making glycerine for explosives, to destroy German shipping and to take prisoners.

It was the first time Norwegians had challenged the Germans on their own soil since the tragic days of last spring when the Germans occupied and over-ran the country.

While British and Norwegian light naval forces attacked shipping in

Germans Lose 5,346 Planes, 13,365 Airmen Since Start Of Conflict, Figures Reveal

By NORMAN LODGE

LONDON, March 6.—(CP)—Night fighting operations of the Royal Air Force now are considered so successful in minimizing effects of German visits to London that permission was given today to identify the night flying planes as Hurricanes, Blenheims and Defiants.

At the same time The Associated Press learned from officials of the air ministry that German air losses from all causes and in all theatres except the Mediterranean since the beginning of the war total 5,346 planes officially accounted for. No probable losses were included in the reckoning, the ministry said. It was estimated the Nazi air force had lost 13,365 of its personnel.

Total British plane losses were set officially at 854; although casualty figures were not given, it was stated that 427 men of the crews assigned to planes destroyed were known to have been saved.

BREAKDOWN OF LOSSES

The British breakdown of the German losses gave: Lost in attacks on Britain, 3,131; shot down on the western front, 957; lost in the Scandinavian campaign, 96; destroyed in Germany and German-occupied territory, 921; shot down over the sea, 34; accounted for by British and Allied navies, 247.

Margesson Says Figures Given Include Entire Libyan Campaign

LONDON, March 6—(CP)—The government told parliament today that the British army had lost only 525 men in the entire campaign against Italy in Africa and the middle east.

Capt. David Margesson, war secretary, said of these 438 were killed and 87 are missing. An additional 1,249 were wounded.

He gave the figures in presenting the army budget, the figures of which are kept secret, as is customary in wartime.

Nation Expects To Help Nazi Germany While Avoiding War

Mediation Effort Launched By Regent Prince Paul At Meeting With Von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano

ANKARA, Turkey, March 6.—(AP)—The Turkish radio, stating that Germany's campaign in the Balkans is aimed at control of the eastern Mediterranean and Black Sea, declared tonight: "This plan will be difficult to apply, especially if Yugoslavia starts to fight."

BELGRADE, March 6.—(AP)—Reports from across the Greek border tonight said the civilian population was being removed hastily from Thrace and eastern Macedonia.

Those are the areas which would be the first battlefields if Germans attempted an invasion of Greece.

By LEON KAY

BELGRADE, March 6.—(BUP)—Yugoslavia was reported today to be engaged in an eleventh hour attempt to make peace between Greece and the Axis preliminary to an important declaration strengthening Yugoslav relations which was expected in "two or three days".

The mediation effort, said to have been launched by the regent, Prince Paul, at a conference with Axis Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano two days ago, was believed designed to avert Yugoslav involvement in a Balkan war, if possible.

(Budapest expected that Yugoslav representatives would be summoned to Berchtesgaden to sign the tri-partite alliance as soon as Turkey replies to a message from Adolf Hitler. Turkey was said to be preparing a "negative" reply to the Hitler note.)

It was thought here that Yugoslavia would not formally join the tri-partite alliance at the moment but that a new formula for closer

GENERAL WEYGAND'S return to France from north Africa for conferences with Marshal Petain may presage strengthening of Vichy's policy against Hitler's extra-armistice demands. The increasing entanglements of the Fuehrer which are carrying him nearer to estrangement with Russia may be expected to form an important part of the discussions between General Weygand and Marshal Petain.

At the outset of the war, it was General Weygand's opinion that the final decision would come in the Near East. He was in command of the French forces there and is France's leading specialist on near eastern military matters.

The Weygand conception of grand strategy was based on a deadlock along the Western Front, with neither side able to make headway against the other. Thereafter, the Weygand school of thought believ-

USE UNCLAIMED BANK BALANCES IN WAR EFFORT

Proposal Heard To Divert Forgotten Cash Into War Chest

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 6—The proposal was heard on parliament hill today that an effort be made to divert unclaimed bank credits into the war effort. Recent returns made to parliament showed that unclaimed funds amounting to $3,700,000 are carried on the books of the chartered banks and savings banks, representing deposit balances, certified cheques, dividends, money order, drafts and bills of exchange that have not been claimed for five years or more.

Treasury officials said that analysis of the figures would show that substantial amounts were merely reserve savings that had not been forgotten, though under the law everything on bank books that has been inactive for five years must be reported. Such items remain a liability of the bank in-

War Savings Resolution In Legislature Engages Members In Warm Debate

Extension of the Dominion government war savings certificates and stamps campaign to the Alberta legislative chamber, took place Wednesday and served as a basis for an unfinished debate which not only embraced this activity, but also went far into the field of monetary reform.

The debate was stormy and featured by many clashes between government and opposition benches as members sought to orient their desire to endorse war savings certificates and stamps with their views on monetary reform.

The discussion was brought about by a resolution, moved by Premier William Aberhart, seeking endorsation of the house for the certificates and stamps campaign; urging every Alberta citizen to co-operate with the Dominion in winning the war in every reasonable way and advocating effective methods of financing the war and preparing for post-war activities by issuing money and credit without inflation.

To this, D. M. Duggan, Ind., Edmonton, moved an amendment endorsing the sale of stamps and certificates as an integral part of the war effort and that every citizen assist to the greatest possible extent.

Mr. Duggan's amendment was defeated by a vote of 35 to 18, with the government lined up solidly against the amendment with the help of Angus J. Morrison, Labor, Edson, who seconded the Premier's resolution. Independents were solid in favor of the amendment.

With this defeated, debate re-

Tragedy Of The Scandinavian Peoples

Swedish "Independence" Is Hollow Sepulcher

Leland Stowe, ace correspondent of The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service, has just returned to America after 17 months' service in most of the crucial sectors of the war. Freed of the limitations of censorship and able to consider the whole picture from the campaign in Finland to the campaigns in Greece and Libya, Stowe has been asked to summarize his impressions for the benefit of North American readers. The third of his noteworthy dispatches follows.—EDITOR.

Scandinavian Twilight

By LELAND STOWE

Copyright, 1941, by The Edmonton Bulletin and The Chicago Daily News, Inc.

WHEN my editor asked me to do an article "Scandinavian Twilight," he must have wanted to assure me of an exceptionally warm welcome in some parts of the middle west. This is not a happy topic. I would much rather avoid it, for I know it is impossible for me to discuss it—out of my own experiences and observations—without being misunderstood and without getting into hot water.

I spent nearly six months of last winter and spring in the three northern countries: about two-thirds of that period in Finland and the remainder in Sweden and Norway. It seems to me a great error to lump the Finns and the Scandinavians together as if they were cousins. The Finns have about as much similarity to their Nordic neighbors as the Turks have to the Icelandic Italians. In language, in character and in code of living the Finns are utterly different. Geography and the Arctic winter seem almost the only important things which link them, in some degree, to the Swedes and Norwegians.

When I think of Sweden I think of a people who were determined to remain neutral at whatever cost and are still neutral—at a cost which they have now barely begun to feel and realize. When I think of Norway, I think of a people who put their trust in pacifism rather than preparedness, a people who had never been taught that if you want freedom you must be ready, first and foremost, to defend it yourself. When I think of Finland, I think of the gallant three million I think of a little people who have fought giants all down the centuries and see alive today because they have always known how to die. The Finns, too, have always known there is only one road to freedom.

These thoughts of mine are merely outgrowths of the record of events in these three northern countries since the European war began: the inevitable crystallization of what I have seen, heard, and experienced there. They are not things of my own making, but rather things which have been done to me. That is why some of them are painful and sharp with disillusionment. Like most Americans, I had always regarded Norway and Sweden as the well-nigh perfect democracies. I had always admired their progressive social legislation, their cleanliness and industry, their enlightened relations between capital and labor—all these so much more advanced than in most other countries.

In Oslo, last April, I saw Norway's capital occupied by 1,400 Nazi infantrymen without a hand being lifted or a boo being uttered among more than 30,000 Oslonis, nearly half of them men of military age, who lined the streets looking on. Everything we saw during the next four days was painful in the extreme. The people were dazed and bewildered. They seemed to forget that part of their army, still true to traditions of long ago, was fighting desperately and bravely only 60 miles to the northward.

Certainly there were many courageous Norwegians, but there were many others who had never dreamed of the necessity of fighting like anything. Like the Swedes, they had had more than 100 years of uninterrupted peace. Their socialist governments had always belittled the idea of strong national defense forces. They had placed social security far above national security. More than that, they believed in the immunity of geography. When Norwegians talked about the North Sea, they sounded like many Americans do today when they talk about the Atlantic

Important Move On Oil Expected

Important new regulations for encouraging the prospecting and development of Alberta oil fields are expected to be announced by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, in the immediate future, it was reported Thursday.

Mr. Tanner discussed regulations and their effect with Robert E. Allen, chairman of the petroleum and natural gas conservation board, and other officials Thursday. The whole idea of the new regulation will be to make it easier for the development of the oil industry in Alberta.

SOVIET PAPER CLAIMS TURKS MAY JOIN WAR

May Act If Nazis Occupy Salonika, Red Star Says In Review

MOSCOW, March 6.—(BUP)—The Russian army paper, Red Star, today quoted "foreign observers" as stating that Turkey may join the war if Germany takes Salonika, permitting British warships to transit the Dardanelles and British troops to operate from Turkish soil.

Red Star devoted two full columns to a review of the Balkan situation.

The exhaustive review did not disclose Russia's position on the Balkans but asserted that "foreign observers" said that if Germany should take Salonika it was "not excluded" that Turkey will come to the aid of Greece.

Red Star said that, in event of German-Turkish hostilities, Turkey plans to defend its own territory.

At the same time, Red Star said, Turkey will permit British warships to move through the Dardanelles to attack Germany from the Black Sea and to use Turkish territory on which to base British land forces.

All these statements were attributed to the same "foreign observers." "Other foreign sources" were quoted as forecasting a growing diplomatic struggle by the Axis in an attempt to maintain Turkey and Yugoslavia in a neutral position.

is so messed up it is impossible to estimate the losses."

A recent issue of the air ministry bulletin, however, said air force figures in the middle east, Libya, East Africa, Albania and Malta through Feb. 28 showed that 1,385 Axis planes had been destroyed. Approximately 1,200 were Italian planes. Losses inflicted by Greek forces were not included.

U. S. PLANE IS USED

It was made known also that certain types of United States planes, refitted here, have been sent into action.

Pilots who have flown Spitfires, Hurricanes and Blenheims warmly praised the performance of the refurbished U. S. planes, commenting especially their manoeuvrability, rate of climb and the ease with which they can be landed.

Before they are officially accepted for front line duty these U. S. planes are sent up with test pilots in mock battle with Spitfires and Hurricanes.

FIVE CHILDREN LOSE LIVES IN OTTAWA RIVER

By T. R. WALSH

GATINEAU MILLS, Que., March 6.— (CP) — An afternoon frolic on the ice-covered Gatineau River ended in death by drowning Tuesday for five boys when they apparently mistook foam for ice and plunged into the water.

The boys, all believed to be eight or nine years old, were Raymond and Robert, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest March; Jack Napier, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Napier; Kenneth Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Dixon; Gordon Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Smith.

All the families live in this little paper-mill community on the Ottawa river about three miles east of Ottawa.

Coroner W. J. Costello of nearby Buckingham, Que., decided the deaths were accidental and that no inquests would be held.

He said he believed the lads mistook foam from a mill sewage outlet for ice, and slid into the water.

Carol's Sojourn In Portugal Is Declared Legal

LISBON, March 6.—(AP)—Former King Carol and his companion-in-exile from Rumania, Mme. Magda Lupescu, arrived safely in Portugal Wednesday after a dash from their hotel in Seville, Spain.

They were met at the Portuguese border by Carol's personal friend, Berlalin, Ernest Urdareanu, who escaped from Spain last December.

It was said the former king's situation in Portugal was perfectly legal since the long-announced intention of Portuguese authorities to permit him to reside in Portugal until the end of the war was believed unchanged.

When the couple established their new residence was not disclosed.

ALBERTA GOES OUT IN FRONT IN BRIER PLAY

ly-played match came on the 10th end when Alberta scored six to build up most of its winning margin. On the end Hall's crisp shot-making was overshadowed by Palmer's daring play—seemingly reckless curling which really decided the exciting match.

Meanwhile, Manitoba and Saskatchewan drew even with Ontario by winning seventh round matches, Manitoba beating Nova Scotia 11-7 while Saskatchewan slopped Ontario Ontario by the same score. New Brunswick won it's first game of the event 10-8 over Quebec and British Columbia defeated Prince Edward Island 11-8.

ALONE AT TOP

The results left Alberta alone in the leadership with six wins in six. One low, while Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Ontario are tied in second place, each with five and two. Northern Ontario, British Columbia and Nova Scotia each has four and three, while Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick each has two one, lost six. The Quebec rink, still playing without Edmond St. Amand, third man, due to illness, has lost all seven games.

Alberta never relinquished the lead it took on the first end with a three-point count but pulled even on the third before dropping back again. When the rinks started the fifth end Alberta led 12-6. But Ontario had been threatening on each end. It was the feeling of the gallery that a Palmer had to do was miss one of his own rocks and Ontario would be back in the running. But Palmer didn't miss.

SPREADS ROCKS

On the 10th he started drawing to the house, laying guards, spreading his rocks around to give Hall's take-outs as little as possible room which to shoot. After Alberta had thrown five rocks and Ontario four, Alberta had four in the house and St. Lucas, Ontario's third, drew finely to cut off three of them and lie second shot. But Alberta's third man, Jack Lebeau, took that cue and said again Alberta had four counters.

Then Lucas drew in to count shot rock, cutting off all four. Palmer tipped a guard and missed his shot, a daring one. Hall took immediate advantage, completely shot Palmer had missed to give Ontario two counters although Alberta still had five rocks in the house.

After conferring with Lebeau Palmer indicated he would attempt to split the two Ontario rocks. Gill Ontario fans the gallery laughed. To take out both Ontario rocks he would have to hit the first one at an angle, raising it hard to hit the second one at an angle, making them pass one on either side of an Alberta rock.

The shot looked impossible involving as it did drawing through a narrow port even before the angle was calculated. Sports-minded timers still were "tut-tutting" Palmer's decision to try the split-in-the-middle shot against the two old-timers when the rock curled through and completed the shot Palmer had planned.

IMPOSSIBLE SHOT

Hall had a practically impossible shot to make for his last rock. Alberta held six in the house nearly near the outer circle, so should Hall miss slightly he would merely raise the Alberta rock. He made it the hard way—a draw through the outer rocks to shot—and failed, tipping the shot rock and skidding to the outer circle to leave the six Alberta rocks counting.

Each skip was a master strategist and his deliberations were fully aired in support. Alberta's third, Jack Lebeau, had a few bad shots but was flying down when it counted.

Excellent curling by Bill Dunbar sent Saskatchewan back into the limelight of the race over Don Beal's Northern Ontario four. It was strictly a knock-out game with seldom more than one rock in the house at a time. Beal was slightly off on a knockout rock on the fifth which skidded through the house itself after tipping out Dunbar's shot rock, leaving a dead-end.

MISSED DRAWS

Beat drew well for one counter on the 12th but on the sixth and 10th missed draws which would have given him points.

The British Columbia-Prince Edward Island game was fairly even most of the way. Rolly Devid, B.C. third, and skip Billy Finlay both drew in fourth, but skip W. R. Cruikshank of Prince Edward Island turned in some of his best curling to make the deciding shot. Finlay's four-ender on the eighth was the decisive blow. Cruikshank had curled a fine sixty-seventy house for shot-rock with his last stone of the previous end.

SECRET DUTCH GROUP WORRIES GERMAN ARMY

Military Court Threatens Severe Punishment To Agitators

AMSTERDAM (Via Berlin), March 6.—(AP)—The president of the German military court which condemned 18 Netherlanders to death threatened similar punishment today for everyone who, even in thought, plots against the German army.

He disclosed that additional cases are awaiting German military court proceedings. Most of those already sentenced to death were charged with spying for Great Britain and plotting to co-operate with the British army in the event of an invasion.

NAZI SOLDIERS KILLED

The trial which resulted in the convictions Tuesday revealed that a secret organization had been active from May until December, 1940, especially in the Netherlands region nearest the English coast across the channel.

German authorities, the court president asserted, regretted that several German soldiers had been pushed into the water and drowned or had fallen victim to snipers as a result of the underground organization.

The hearing developed a declaration that the plotters circulated pamphlets written in invisible ink advocating acts against German soldiers.

In all there were 42 defendants. Six were acquitted. Those sentenced who escaped the death penalty were imprisoned for various terms.

There is no death penalty under Netherlands law. It was introduced by German occupation authorities. So far one man has been executed.

EXTENSIVE PLANS

Witnesses in the five-day court-martial session described an extensive but loosely-organized conspiracy which was fostered by a secret society known as the "Geuzen".

The conspirators, it was charged, were prepared for any sort of terrorism, some directed at German troops. Officers testified they found stores of dynamite, arms and poison.

Some defendants apparently were vague as to the nature and purpose of the secret society. They said they did not know their superiors and their supreme leader apparently escaped German investigators. This leader, said to be a 42-year-old Netherlander, was known as "Colonel Verdun".

Contrary to usual practice, Netherlands newspapers were allowed to attend the trial to "convince themselves of the fairness of the proceedings."

definitely, and some unclaimed balances could run more than 100 years. The bank act provides that the bank must always be prepared to honor claims against them no matter how old. The amount that is truly unclaimed, one source estimated, is about 20 per cent of the total.

70,000 ITEMS

Most of the unclaimed items are less than 40 years old. The total number reported was 70,000. The province of Quebec has a procedure to claim old balances in bank branches in that province, and the total judgment against them is 70,000 items.

The returns made to parliament include items such as a $15 balance dated April 24, 1916 in the Imperial bank, Winnipeg, for the Canadian Mounted Rifles, Osborne Barracks.

Vancouver Offer Unclaimed

Vancouver offers "Peaches," 551 Granville street, left $100 in the Imperial Bank on April 14, 1925, and apparently forgot it.

OLD WINNIPEG ENTRY

The Soldiers' Wives' League, Winnipeg, left $152.45 in its bank account on November 10, 1904, and the bank still holds it. Pte. J. J. Duggan bought a draft for 10 pounds sterling himself from the Imperial Bank and has never cashed it. Yip On and Chow Tong, 21 Pender St., West, Vancouver, left $29.51 in the Main and Hastings branch of the Bank of Montreal in July, 1914, and the money is still there.

There are countless items such as these among the unclaimed balances, and no one has yet discovered a way of making use of forgotten money.

Italians Scuttle Warship After British Bombing

NEW YORK, March 6.—(AP)—The 23,622-ton Italian battleship Conte De Cavour was scuttled by her crew after British planes bombed her during last November's raid on the naval base at Taranto, a reformed traveller said Tuesday.

Albert Ruccia, Newark, N.J., who returned on the S.S. Siboney, said a friend of his living at Taranto told him that the ship burst into flames and was scuttled to prevent her munitions from exploding. He said the ship was resting in shallow water with her decks awash.

Britain said the raid put half of Italy's six capital ships out of action. Mussolini admitted three had been hit but claimed only one was seriously damaged.

Britain Says Russ Demands Likely Untrue

LONDON, March 6.—(CP)— Authoritative sources said today their information indicated that reports of a Soviet demand for Rumanian ports on the Black Sea probably were false and German propaganda.

These sources said such propaganda might serve Germany's end "by suggesting that the Balkans have something to fear from Russia from which Germany would be glad to protect them."

A Russian official in London said he knew nothing about the reported Russian ultimatum and expressed belief the report was untrue.

FRENCH, THAI AGREEMENT IS NOW CLAIMED

Joint Communique Says All Principal Points Agreed Upon

By H. O. THOMPSON

TOKYO, March 6.—(BUP)—Danger of renewed hostilities between French Indo-China and Thailand (Siam), with the possibility of armed intervention by Japan, was averted at least temporarily today.

Japan announced an agreement between Thailand and Indo-China after the principal points of the peace terms which it had proposed.

(It was stated officially at Saigon, French Indo-China, that the armistice between Thailand and Indo-China had been prolonged indefinitely.)

STRENGTHEN POSITIONS

Coincident with easing of tension here, Shanghai dispatches reported that Japanese military forces had consolidated positions on a 250-mile stretch of the South China Coast within striking distance of Indo-China. In Malaya, British land, sea, air and civil defense forces started important military manoeuvres.)

Tokyo radio announced that Thailand had accepted French reservations to the final Japanese peace terms.

At Tokyo a communique said that "remaining points of detail" were likely to be settled within a few days.

The Japanese information board said Foreign Minister Youke Matsuoka conferred again today with French Ambassador Charles Arsene-Henry and discussed points not already agreed upon by the French and Thai governments.

The communique announcing the agreement on principal points came less than 24 hours after the announcement at noon tomorrow, Japanese time (8 o'clock tonight, M.S.T.; 10 p.m. Wednesday, Indo-China time) of the twice extended truce between Indo-China and Thailand.

WINS MODIFICATIONS

At 2:30 p.m. (10:30 p.m., M.S.T.), a Japanese-mediated Thailand-French China joint communique was issued:

"The mediation plan presented by the Japanese government has been agreed to by both the French and Thai governments on principal points and the remaining points of detail are likely to be settled within a few days."

France had held out for weeks against the "final" terms which Japan had demanded that she accept, and it was indicated she had no idea that modifications in the plan which, devised by Japan as "mediator", she would have sacrificed rich and populous areas to Japan's friend, Thailand. However, it was also indicated that France would be forced to surrender great tracts of Indo-China territory.

By holding out, France had compelled Japan to extend Thailand's deadline after "final" deadline. The latest of the many "final" deadlines was midnight last night, Japan having said that unless agreement were reached then it would be impossible to get the army to the troops in the lines and prevent a renewal of fighting.

As negotiations reached the critical stage Japan massed an army on the northwest frontier of Indo-China and permitted the inspired press to say that it was making preparation to meet "the worst situation," an apparent implication that Japan would impose its terms by military force.

NEW WEAPON TO MASTER GERMAN NIGHT RAIDERS

VANCOUVER, March 6—(CP)—German night bombing over Britain soon will be mastered with the aid of a new British defensive weapon, Col. W. C. Woodward, executive assistant to Munitions Minister Howe, said Wednesday in an address to the Vancouver board of trade.

Col. Woodward said Britain is "so close" to solving the problem of the night bombers "it is tantalizing. I have seen demonstrations of this new weapon which cannot fail to cause it convinces me that before long we shall bang them out of the sky as surely as we do in the daytime."

Col. Woodward warned against putting any confidence in Russia, saying: "I fancy Stalin would rather put the British Empire down because he knows Communism will never get a foothold in Britain. Hitler's country would be very much afraid of fertile land for his red doctrines."

GEN. WEYGAND REACHES VICHY TO SEE PETAIN

Commander Of France's Forces In Africa To Visit Leader

VICHY, France, March 6.—(AP)—Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander of the French forces in North Africa, arrived by plane this afternoon for his first meeting with Marshal Petain in six months.

He was accompanied by two officers. All wore civilian clothes. Weygand went immediately to the Pare hotel, where Petain has his headquarters.

SPECULATION RIFE

The government announced last night that Weygand had arrived in Vichy, but today it explained that this previous announcement was issued deliberately as a "blind" intended to cover his real movements.

An official announcement today said Weygand came "to report on his inspection tour of French African possessions."

The wording of the announcement would seem to indicate that Weygand's stay here would be short.

The secrecy was seen as a precaution taken in view of the death of Jean Chiappe in the downing of a French airliner which was carrying him to Syria last November.

Speculation was rife as to the reason for Weygand's flying visit, but a spokesman at the war ministry said he "is merely reporting to his chief. If he were not so far away he would do it twice a month."

POSSIBLE SUBJECTS

Some sources thought he came to discuss current unsupported rumors that Britain intended to occupy French-mandated Syria to maintain better contact with Turkish armed forces and then give the mandate to Turkey after the war.

Another possibility was that he might discuss declarations made by R. A. Butler, British undersecretary of foreign affairs, and Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Free French leader, that German soldiers and technicians had arrived in French Morocco, only 150 miles from the Strait of Gibraltar.

BRITISH SINK 11 VESSELS IN LOFOTEN RAID harbor, British troops and Norwegian marines were landed under cover of fire from the Allied naval de'achment.

In hand to hand fighting against the weak German resistance, they killed a German naval officer and six men, took their prisoners including the wife of Vidkun Quisling, the Norwegian who helped to deliver his country to the Germans, and burned 3,000 tons of foodstuffs and took aboard the Norwegian patriots who at last had the opportunity to escape German rule and fight for their country as part of the allied forces.

ENEMIES LIQUIDATED

Their object completed, the British-Norwegian expedition withdrew.

Of the distribution of foodstuffs and clothes, the joint communique of the two navies said sacidly that they were of the sort of which the Norwegian population had been robbed since the German occupation" and that they were put ashore, due to the allied sweep, "without danger of their being diverted to enemy use."

It was indicated that all "enemies" had been liquidated in the raided area.

The question immediately arose of the fate of the "Quislings", who are regarded by the Norwegian government in exile as traitors and thus presumably liable to the death penalties for such crimes. Thus they might be tried for treason, held as prisoners of war or interned, possibly made hostages for Norwegian patriots still in Norway.

In their raid the British and Norwegians took a tank mine layer, a merchant ships, a Norwegian merchant ship in German service and a German armed trawler. They sank in all, including one German ship of about 10,000 tons which was fully laden.

In destroying the glycerine plant the British and Norwegian forces had deprived Germany of an important supply of explosive elements, it was indicated.

Tribute Is Paid To Determination Of Cardiff People

CARDIFF, Wales, March 6.—(CP)—Tribute to the "magnificent spirit and morale of the people of Cardiff was paid last night by Lord Mayor W. H. McCole after a tour of burned and blasted homes and buildings of this busy Welsh port.

"The more bombs the Germans drop the more determined the people of Cardiff become," he said in an interview. "I do not think the people of London or any other city in Britain can take it better than those of Cardiff."

Considering the severity of the two-night raid, fire and casualties were not overly heavy.

'Quake In Bergen

STOCKHOLM, March 6—(AP)— Four earth shocks yesterday in the vicinity of Bergen, German-occupied Norway, were reported in dispatches received here today. The reports mentioned no damage.

collaboration with the Axis would be found.

An indirect link through closer ties to Germany, it was said, might be the solution.

Germany was said to be willing to permit Yugoslavia to stay out of the war if the latter's decision cause Yugoslav opinion is evidently unwilling to accept such a move now. Any movement of foreign troops across Yugoslavia would be likely to arouse Serbian national pride.

Therefore, it was said, a "middle way" probably would be found—not unlike the relations between Sweden and Germany—which German war materials would be allowed to transit Yugoslavia and possibly hospital trains and German troops on leave.

German Army Staff Confers With Boris

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 6—(AP)—The general staff of the German expeditionary force, headed by Field Marshal Sigmund List, called on King Boris, the war ministry and the foreign affairs ministry today while Nazi forces continued their sweep southeast within Bulgaria.

Waves of German troops were continuing to arrive from the north. Motorized equipment, field kitchens, supply trucks and heavy artillery also are following the troops, tanks and artillery which for days have been pouring through Balkan passes.

CENSOR PHONE CALLS

All telephone lines both within the country and those connecting with the outside world now are in the hands of the military. Many telegrams and cable messages are being held up to avoid the possibility of transmitting military information (Here the Sofia connection with Berne, to which this dispatch was relayed, was presumably by the military censor.)

Planes from the German fourth air fleet totalling 150 bombers and fighters, already based in Bulgaria, were reported photographing both Greek and Turkish defences.

To meet the threat of 150,000 Nazi troops massed along her borders, Greece has said to have concentrated six divisions—totalling about 90,000 men—in the mountain passes north of Salonika. Some of these were said to be veterans of the fighting against the Italians in Albania.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Complicating the menacing situation were these developments on the diplomatic front:

1—Rumanian Premier Ion Antonescu returned to Bucharest this morning and summoned an emergency meeting of his cabinet after a conference yesterday with Field Marshal Hermann Goering.

2—Rumanian government quarters acknowledged that Antonescu has received a long list of demands before conferring with Goering, and reports were current in diplomatic circles in Bucharest that Russia had demanded immediate cession by Rumania of Black Sea naval bases.

Diplomatic dispatches from Belgrade indicated Britain was exerting every possible effort to prevent Yugoslavia from following Italy in signing up with the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance. Some quarters expressed belief that Regent Prince Paul of Yugoslavia might go to Vienna today to confer with Nazi leaders.

4—Diplomatic advices from Ankara said Turkish diplomatic quarters as saying that the message from Hitler two days ago had in no way affected Turkey's policy of standing firm against treaty obligations to Great Britain.

5—In Athens an official announcement declared that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Greek government officials were in agreement after conferences on the Balkan situation.

STALIN COUNTER-MOVE

There was no immediate confirmation of reports that Russia had suggested to Germany that Bessarabia, nature to Rumania, but Balkan diplomatic observers said they believed Joseph Stalin had some move under way to counter the German occupation of Bulgaria.

These sources took the view that the formation of a bloc of the Balkans Russia faces the same geographic and strategic principles which face overturn, and the imperial Russia fight costly wars to keep other great powers away from the Dardanelles. Russia's built in the Mediterranean.

Now German armies are at the Turkish frontier, less than 100 miles from the straits.

German quarters in Sofia said they were taking an increasingly serious view of "the strange turn in Soviet attitude."

This presumably was a reference to the sharp note which Russia delivered to Bulgaria, declaring she could not approve the Sofia government's policy of agreeing to the presence of German troops in Bulgaria.

British Fleet Non-Existent If Axis Claims Are Correct

Claim 34 Capital Ships Sunk, But Britain Had Only 13

LONDON, March 6—(CP)—An admiralty statement disclosed today that Germany and Italy had claimed to have sunk or seriously damaged 34 British Empire battleships or battle cruisers, whereas Britain had only 15 such warships at the outbreak of the war.

Amplifying the statement of A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, before the House of Commons yesterday, that the Axis had claimed to have sunk or seriously damaged more than twice the number of capital ships, aircraft carriers and cruisers Britain possessed at the start of the war, the admiralty said in some cases units of the fleet had been claimed sunk "several times over."

Today's statement said Britain possessed seven aircraft carriers while her enemies claimed 12 were sent to the bottom.

Britain had 58 submarines at the start of the war and German and Italian high command communiques listed 71 accounted for.

According to German and Italian claims Britain only has remaining but destroyers left. The Admiralty said 185 were on hand in 1939 and 144 have been claimed by the Axis powers.

In merchant shipping claims by the Axis, the Admiralty declared "exaggeration is just about 100 per cent."

The Admiralty said 40 German and Italian ships of 2,028,048 tons and 36 of 61,000 gross tons sailing under their control were known to have been sunk, captured, or scuttled.

Of those ships, 34 totalling 281,000 tons have been captured and are now in Britain's service, the announcement said.

It added that 49 German ships of 350,000 tons and 110 Italian ships of 642,500 tons are still "lying useless in sanctuary of neutral harbors."

BRITISH LOSE ONLY 525 MEN IN AFRICA WAR

ties covered the period from the end of November, 1940, to Feb. 11, 1941, and included the final capitulation of Bengasi and Derna, which compelled the capture or destruction of the whole Italian army in the east of Libya, estimated to exceed 200,000 men.

PRELUDE TO BIG FIGHT

Describing the speed of the African campaign, Capt. Margesson said: "These operations are a prelude to greater struggles with our principal enemy."

Since the evacuation at Dunkerque, Capt. Margesson said, the problem of equipment had been eased and "we are now able to form new divisions, in addition to the large reinforcements of equipment which have been sent to the Middle East" and with "material aid to our allies."

The danger of invasion "is a very real one," he said, "We are endeavoring to improve our defence from day to day."

He disclosed dispatches by Lord Gort, British commander-in-chief in France, on the French campaign and Dunkerque soon will be published.

BRILLIANT OFFENSIVE

He said the weakness of the Italian opposition to Gen. Wavell's sweep across Libya was not due primarily to weakened morale, because the Italians were well equipped, strongly entrenched and numerically superior, but it was due to "brilliant use of surprise and manoeuvre by the British forces under their commander and to superlative work of the administrative and supply services."

The plans against invasion of Britain are "always fluid," he said, and troops are being trained to meet any contingency.

Capt. Margesson recited the work of long-range desert patrols which Gen. Wavell formed soon after Italian forces had been invaded by Englishmen who in peacetime explored the Libyan desert as a hobby. They penetrated the desert, destroyed gasoline dumps and harassed Italian garrisons.

They covered 500,000 miles and not a single vehicle was lost as the result of a breakdown although patrols were forced to avoid the recognized desert tracks.

2 CONSULATES OF ITALY IN U.S. TOLD TO CLOSE

"Reasons Of National Policy" Force Closure In Two Cities

WASHINGTON, March 6—(AP)—The United States government told Italy today to close its consulates at Detroit and Newark, N.J., "for reasons of national policy."

Decision of the government that foreign consulates in certain areas should be closed was announced by the state department.

It followed the recent action of the Italian government to have the United States close its consulates at Naples and Palermo.

The state department announcement said:

"For reasons of national policy it has been decided that foreign consulates in certain areas should be closed.

"At the present time, the Italian government has been requested to close its consulates at Detroit, Mich., and Newark, N.J., and to withdraw the personnel.

The request that the personnel be withdrawn from the United States will prevent their transfer to Italian consulates elsewhere in this country.

The Diroli consulate is in charge of Giacomo Profili, who has been vice-consul since 1938. Renati Della Chiesa De Isasca is vice-consul in charge at Newark.

LONDON SERVICE PAYS TRIBUTE TO SIR F. BANTING

LONDON, March 6.—(CP)—In the famed grey church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, Canadians paid tribute Wednesday to the memory of Sir Frederick Banting.

The congregation, which included Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner, and Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps, gathered in the historic bomb-scarred church and heard Canon Hepburn of Ottawa, chief Protestant chaplain of Canada's overseas army, describe the man who lost his life coming down by an airplane in Canada as "a great citizen of the world."

In his brief address, Canon Hepburn, recalling Prime Minister Churchill's tribute to the Royal Air Force that never had there been so many owed by so many to so few, declared that never perhaps had so many "been so consciously aware of the debt they owed to just one or two"—Sir Frederick Banting and his colleague in the discovery of insulin, Dr. C. H. Best.

sumed on the Premier's original motion.

Five speakers were heard during the afternoon; the Premier, Mr. Morrison; Mr. Duggan, Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., minister of municipal affairs and Alfred Speakman, Ind., Red Deer.

Debate was adjourned by A. E. Fee, S.C., Sedgewick.

PREMIER'S DESIRE

"In proposing this motion I do so with the hope that it will not involve this house in a lengthy debate, nor give the impression that we are not united in the one great purpose of the resolution," said the Premier in moving his motion.

"I feel that during the last two weeks the honorable members have probably had time to clear away most of their differences and may be able to agree a little better.

"The truth of the matter is that as long as we emphasize minor details we can never reach unanimous declarations or make any progress. We must face matters in a spirit of compromise and tolerance. I have seen good friends separated in a lifelong enmity simply because they differed in minor matters in their religious views and what do you think the question was? Whether or not a woman should be allowed to speak in a church or not.

"I should like to say that the trend of the times in which we live should favorably impress upon us the need of trying to be unanimous in all essential matters and in presenting a united front to the common dangers which beset us.

SUPPORTS CAMPAIGN

"The purpose of this resolution is to show that this legislature is ready to support the federal campaign for war savings. Everyone of us must be fully aware of the fact that our country is involved in a serious war with a vicious enemy. We must do everything in our power to assist in winning this victory and in saving our people from totalitarian pagan bondage.

"The federal government has thought it wise to introduce a war savings scheme. As this is a government regularly elected by the people, we are willing to support them as fully as we can and to advise our people accordingly.

"That is the purpose of this resolution.

"It is true that we have suggested in the past and do still recommend what we think should be done to give our war effort its greatest efficiency and to make due preparation for the post-war period, but this is incidental to this resolution.

"We see the importance of a united front and are therefore willing to support Ottawa's proposal.

"I feel confident that under the circumstances and for the purpose of securing unanimous support this resolution will receive 100 per cent agreement.

"I believe that the resolution is very plain.

PART OF WAR EFFORT

"Whereas the Dominion government has adopted the sale of war savings certificates and stamps as one of the methods of financing the war, and Whereas this method of financing the war has been designed by the Dominion government to achieve the primary and foremost objective of the British Empire at the present time, namely winning the war;

"Now, therefore be it resolved that this legislative assembly endorses campaign for the sale of war savings certificates and stamps, which is now being carried on throughout Canada as a part of our war effort;

"And further that this assembly urges that every citizen of Alberta should co-operate with the Dominion government in the winning of the war in every reasonable way possible;

"And finally that this assembly urges upon the Dominion government the necessity of adopting effective methods of financing the war and preparing for the post-war period by the national control and issue of money and credit without inflation."

In seconding the resolution, Angus J. Morrison, Labor, Edson, urged unanimous endorsation of the House He recalled that the United Farmers of Alberta and other organizations had adopted similar resolutions.

INDEPENDENTS' VIEW

D. M. Duggan, Ind., Edmonton, pointed out that the resolution "is closely related to Canada's war effort, a program of sacrifice in the interest of humanity." He said that the atrocities being committed "to satisfy the lust for power of the greatest demon the world has ever known" with the destruction of "familiar scenes of my boyhood days" made him bend his head in a posture of prayer, "but I regret to say that my soul boils with passion for revenge."

Urging that the sacrifices and service given by Britain in protecting Canada, could not be compensated by quibbling over constitutional possibilities; not by a narrow conception of provincial rights; not by arguing over monetary reform; not by modified or conditional pledges of support, he declared that "Unless there is the will to win and sacrifice will spell our right to partnership in the British Commonwealth of Nations and disgrace will be upon us down to the fourth and fifth generations."

OUTLINES NEGOTIATIONS

He urged all to help. The campaign began about nine months ago, at which time, Colonel J. L. Ralston, then minister of finance, explained the purpose was to encourage regular savings out of income and to afford a means of investing these savings directly in the financing of the war.

Mr. Duggan then dealt with negotiations he had carried on with the premier regarding a resolution supporting the war savings drive.

He quoted correspondence between the premier and himself. Mr. Duggan had suggested on behalf of the Independents a resolution, and the premier had replied suggesting some changes therein. Mr. Duggan contended that the alterations proved "highly controversial" and "would destroy the effects of whole-hearted unanimity."

In a letter to the Premier and in commenting on his suggested resolution, Mr. Duggan wrote, "We sincerely regret that you have included in your resolution certain statements which are controversial, thereby destroying the object we had in view."

"We respectfully suggest for consideration the following deletions; words which highly unsatisfactory" in the second clause of your preamble; the word 'reasonable' in the last line of the second clause of your resolution; all the words after the word 'period' in the final clause of your resolution."

"A resolution which expresses an opinion on any specific national monetary policy, would undoubtedly provoke discussion and possibly injure the campaign thereby impairing an important phase of Canada's war program.

"If you cannot see your way to accept our suggestion, we strongly urge you to allow the matter to drop."

Continuing, in explanation, Mr. Duggan said that, "The next step was taken by the premier by placing on the order paper a resolution which he knew was not acceptable to the opposition and therefore precluded the unanimous support of the assembly.

"I want the house to note that in my final letter to the premier, I urged him to let the matter drop rather than divide the house on such an important national matter.

"I cannot conclude my remarks without making a sincere appeal to the mover and seconder, to make the deletions which we have suggested in order that the votes and proceedings of this assembly may record our unanimous support. I hesitate to move an amendment, but if the premier cannot in this way to meet our wishes, there is no alternative."

MOVES AMENDMENT

Mr. Duggan then moved his amendment, as follows:

"That this legislative assembly endorses the campaign for the sale of war savings certificates and stamps, which is now being carried on within this province and throughout Canada, as an integral part of our united war effort and further;

"That this assembly urges upon every citizen of Alberta to maintain the greatest possible contribution to this plan and to our country in the present crisis."

Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., minister of municipal affairs, entered the debate after the defeat of Mr. Duggan's amendment.

He attacked the opposition for having supplied newspapers with material containing the "inuinuation" that the premier had stolen the idea of his resolution from the one suggested by the Independents. He rapidly rising tones, the minister hurled at Mr. Duggan the allegation that he was sincere. Mr. Duggan thumped his desk and jumped to his feet, flushing deeply. "Order!" he cried. Mr. Maynard withdrew the remark.

Mr. Maynard then proceeded to discuss the defeated Duggan amendment along with the original resolution.

METHODS OF FINANCE

This brought Mr. Duggan to his feet again seeking "order." Mr. Maynard replied that he was entitled to discuss the whole resolution together with the amendment. Mr. Speaker Peter Dawson ruled that "the house is discussing the resolution on the order paper."

Carrying on, Mr. Maynard pointed out that Mr. Duggan contended it would be easy for the house to accept amendments to the motion. For his part, he contended it would be just as easy for Independents to accept the government resolution as it stood. Mr. Duggan, he said, had raised the question of method and squabble and that "He has compelled us to discuss methods of finance."

Mr. Maynard then read extracts from an address given by Alfred Speakman, Ind., Red Deer, in the House of Commons, Ottawa, on June 26, 1935, when he was U.F.A. member of parliament for Red Deer. National control of money and credit had been urged by Mr. Speakman as well as annual dividends.

He further charged that Mr. Duggan was the "active leader" of the Independents who had succeeded in returning Conservatives to the house under the cloak of Independence. Mr. Duggan said, "Oh, no."

Mr. Maynard further charged that Independent members who had previously advocated monetary reform in the house, had been hood winked by Mr. Duggan into supporting his amendment.

BACKED REFORM

Proceedings of the house in 1935 were quoted by Mr. Maynard to show that John J. Bowlen, Ind. Calgary, had supported a monetary reform resolution. "And now I am backing the dominion government in winning this war," retorted Mr Bowlen.

It was then read from house records that George MacLachlan, Ind., Pembina, while a U.F.A. member, had seconded resolutions urging a "managed monetary system under national control" and for "socialization of credit."

Mr. Maynard declared that independent objections to inclusion of the word "reasonable" in the resolution was making "a mountain out of a mole hill."

He enunciated Social Credit policy, declaring the war effort in that it was to help the nation in the greatest possible measure and to work for the most efficient means in achieving victory with the greatest equalization of sacrifice.

He reminded the house that the nation was engaged in a great conflict and the war must be won If the Dominion was not going to take more effective means of financing the war then "we must do the best we can with the tools at our disposal." This could give no harm. In pointing out to the dominion means which were thought more effective.

CHARGES "BLUNDER"

He declared that if war savings certificates were kept free of interest it might shame banks and others into doing the same thing. These certificates could be cashed in the bucket in the total war financing effort, he said.

Cries of "shame" came from opposition benches. Mr. Speaker said use of that word was not permitted.

Mr. Maynard contended the government's way was the better to itself control of money and credit, All this government addresses was that the dominion restore to itself the control of money and credit and issue to the limits of possibility, war financing assistance.

Alfred Speakman, Ind., Red Deer, declared that the government was sending a petition out on which to hang its ideas of monetary reform. He charged it was a "ghastly blunder of the first magnitude" in placing "partisan political considerations" ahead of "an unanimous vote of encouragement for Canada's war effort."

He charged Mr. Maynard with uttering "vulperavive" remarks regarding independents and that he had taken advantage of the opportunity of "hanging on a patriotic issue" his personal views on economic progress, monetary reform and "what the dominion government should do."

NO RETRACTION

Dealing with Mr. Maynard's remarks that he had advocated monetary reform in parliament Mr. Speakman said he had made them in the proper forum for monetary reform to be dealt with.

"I'm not going to withdraw or retract anything I said in the House of Commons on the need of financial reform," he said. He pointed out that formerly he was no supporter of Premier Mackenzie King, but he was not going to do anything "that will hinder him as leader of Canada's war effort."

Continuing, he said that if the premier thought the resolution changes merely "incidental" then "I implore him to withdraw the part that is contentious so that we may agree unanimously on an encouraging message of unity and strength."

Mr. Fee then adjourned debate.

PREMIER ASKS U.S. CITIZENS VISIT CANADA

Invitation Issued Through Canadian Government Travel Bureau

OTTAWA, March 6. — (CP)— Prospective United States visitors to Canada had the assurance of Prime Minister Mackenzie King Wednesday that "the fact we are at war will not occasion the slightest interference with your enjoyment and freedom."

Visitors would receive the full freedom on their coming, the prime minister wrote in an official invitation to "the citizens of the United States" to visit the Dominion in 1941.

"The American dollars which you leave behind will be used by the government of Canada for purchases to be made in the United States," he continued. "These purchases will be used for the defence of the ideals of freedom and justice which we hold in common."

THROUGH TRAVEL BUREAU

The full text of Mr. King's message follows:

To the Citizens of the United States:

I am pleased to extend to you an invitation on behalf of the people of Canada to visit our country in the course of the coming year.

When you come to Canada, you will be able to cross the border without difficulty; you will not need passports; you will suffer no restrictions; you will be as free in our country as we are in your own.

You will meet with the warm friendship that good neighbors have for one another. Our country and our institutions are somewhat different from your own. But basic conditions will add interest to your visit.

MANY ATTRACTIONS

You will find good roads on which to travel, fine gardens, lakes and rivers, prairies, mountains, and peaceful homesteads. You will also find great national parks preserved and dedicated for the health, refreshment, and entertainment of the people of Canada and their friends. We have splendid hotels, and wherever you may be you are proud, and many pleasant places along our highways and byways where to rest.

For your money, you will receive the full premium. The American dollars which you leave behind will be used by the government of Canada for purchases to be made in the United States. These purchases will be used for the defence of the ideals of freedom and justice which we hold in common.

The fact that we are at war will not occasion the slightest interference with your enjoyment and freedom, signed W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister of Canada.

MOTION IS ADOPTED

Earlier the house adopted without division the government motion to set up a committee on war expenditures after a number of members stressed the importance of such committee proceeding with its work in an impartial manner.

Mrs. Irene Parlby (Unity, North Battleford), took the floor as the sitting opened to reply to Justice Minister Lapointe who had suggested Monday that she had confused.

She charged a "Canadian version of the Gestapo" was at work in Canada. Replying to a earlier direct question from J. T. Thorson (Lib., Selkirk) as to her views on Communism she declared that the real danger of Communism in Canada as long as Democracy was maintained but save forces working to destroy Democracy.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House the regulations banning Hitlerism and Communism had been extended to Bulgaria and Hungary, as well as Rumania to which they were applied some time ago.

GREAT CHANGES

Mr. Senn said great changes had come over agriculture in the last 20 years. Up to and during the first Great War Canadian farmers enjoyed "a balloon of prosperity" which now has completely vanished.

Quoting from statistics on national income compiled by the Sirois commission, Mr. Senn said the average income of Canadian farmers in the 13 years from 1926 to 1937 was a little over $600 and the average income in the eight years from 1930 to 1937 was something over $400.

"The farmers have not been receiving a fair share of the national income," he said.

Recently large orders for war supplies had been placed by the government and in every case the contracts were based on cost of production plus profit. At the same time labor was assured of the 1929 wage level with further gains warranted by increases in the cost of living.

"I am not finding fault with that," he said. "It was the only course for the government to follow."

FARMERS DISAPPOINTED

At the same time the farmers were disappointed that nothing was done to place them in a position comparable to that of labor and industry. Their "smouldering discontent recently broke out into an open flame" when the price of butter was fixed.

"There is among the farmers a very deep - seated resentment against the present administration," he said.

Mr. Senn said he based this statement on the public meetings given Agriculture Minister Gardiner at a meeting of farmers at London, Ont.

"You left too soon," said Mr. Gardiner.

The debate will resume next week.

MARSHALL'S VIEW

J. A. Marshall (N.D., Camrose) said the New Democracy members had "no objection" expenditures committee should serve continuously during the life of parliament and not lapse with the end of the session as other committees do.

The majority of the members on the committee were lawyers and he doubted if this was wise. His view was "that more time will be spent arguing the legality of this or that clause of a contract rather than appraising the economic value of the contract."

Liguori Lacombe (Lib., Laval-Two Mountains) said the committee should be "fearless". It should be open and tell the newspapers should co-operate in keeping secret matters that should not be published.

The motion then passed.

FARMERS ARE IN POOR WAY MEMBER SAYS

Not Getting Fair Share Of National Income Parliament Told

OTTAWA, March 6. — (CP)— Farmers are not getting a fair share of the national income and have a "deep-seated resentment" against this present system, Mark Senn (Con., Haldimand), told the House of Commons Tuesday.

Rising on the government's motion to move the house into committee of supply on the estimates Mr. Senn seized on the time-honored privilege of members of parliament to call attention to the grievances of their constituents.

He started to speak just before adjournment and did not reach the point of considering an amendment to the motion, but announced his intention of doing so. The amendment will have the effect of a motion or want of confidence in the government.

MOTION IS ADOPTED

Earlier the house adopted without division the government motion to set up a committee on war expenditures after a number of members stressed the importance of such committee proceeding with its work in an impartial manner.

Mrs. Irene Parlby (Unity, North Battleford), took the floor as the sitting opened to reply to Justice Minister Lapointe who had suggested Monday that she had confused.

She charged a "Canadian version of the Gestapo" was at work in Canada. Replying to a earlier direct question from J. T. Thorson (Lib., Selkirk) as to her views on Communism she declared that the real danger of Communism in Canada as long as Democracy was maintained but save forces working to destroy Democracy.

"Our object now is to get the latest data in shape before we meet the American commission later this month (at Washington)," said Hon. Charles Stewart, Canadian section chairman.

JURY UNABLE STATE CAUSE PLANE CRASH

Coroner's Probe Fails Fix Responsibility For TCA Tragedy

By CHARLES EDWARDS

ARMSTRONG, Ont., March 6. —(CP)—A coroner's jury Tuesday night returned a verdict that the pilots of a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane which crashed here Feb. 6, killing 13 persons, met death in a plane crash, "the cause of which is unknown."

We the jury do recommend that the clearing be extended as a further safety device for landing."

The jury was sworn in Monday to inquire into the death of Captain Twiss, of Winnipeg, chief pilot of aircraft CF-TCP when it crashed on a westbound flight while approaching Armstrong for a routine landing.

HUMAN ELEMENT

In summing up the evidence before the five-man jury, Dr. Alfred E. Smirle, coroner of Toronto, supervising coroner for Ontario, emphasized that there had been nothing but indirect evidence to show what factors preceding the crash and referred to evidence that the weather and airport facilities were not a factor.

"It is a fair inference to draw, gentlemen of the jury," he said, "that a human error was the human element. It is for you to decide on the evidence whether it was the human element that caused the accident or whether you may have some other explanation."

Dr. Lawson referred to testimony of Emil Kading, T.C.A. engineer at Armstrong airport, that he was born in Germany 45 years ago and was classified as an enemy alien because he had been naturalized within the minimum of the last seven years.

"In fairness to Kading," the coroner said, "although he is technically a German enemy alien, there is nothing in the evidence to indicate that he had anything to do with the accident. It is for others, not us, to decide where he should be in his present position."

RADIO OPERATOR

Dr. Lawson referred also to evidence that Richard D. Smith, T.C.A. radio operator on duty at Armstrong airport, was in the U.S. for months, received less than a week's training in weather observation in Winnipeg prior to taking up his duties at Armstrong. The usual training period is three weeks to a month. Smith received extensive subsequent training at Armstrong.

"Although Smith had only a short course at Winnipeg," the coroner said, "he impressed me as a very efficient and thoroughly qualified operator."

Another reference of the summation was to testimony that T.C.A. had recommended to the Dominion department of transport that runways on all airports used by the T.C.A. should be built and maintained by the department be made at least 4,000 feet in length.

Dr. Lawson told the jury: "It is for you to decide whether failure of the department of transport to carry out recommendations of T.C.A. regarding the length of runways was a factor in the crash."

IMPORTANT WITNESS

An important witness of the concluding session was Capt. G. W. McLaren, of Winnipeg, T.C.A. pilot and president of the Canadian Air Line Pilots' association.

McLaren, who has a record of 7,050 hours in the air, had been flying T.C.A. planes for the past year on the Winnipeg-Toronto run. He testified he considered the Armstrong field adequate for landing.

C. R. Magone, of Toronto, senior counsel of the Ontario attorney-general's department, asked whether McLaren had experienced difficulty in landing at Armstrong at any time.

"There are times in cases of restricted visibility when our propellers turns do not work out to the second," McLaren replied.

He explained procedure turns are those conducted on instruments according to T.C.A. regulations. They are worked out mathematically.

JOURNEY LOG

"In my estimation if we had some mark as an aid to the flight path it would be an asset," McLaren said.

McLaren said he believed one factor had been overlooked in the evidence. "If instruments failed it would leave the pilot holding the bag," he said.

In his summation Dr. Lawson referred to earlier evidence by John Dyment, T.C.A. chief engineer, that the plane's instruments had been examined after the crash and nothing was found to indicate failure although the instruments had been damaged greatly by the impact.

The last witness was H. Hollick-Kenyon, of Winnipeg, assistant to the general superintendent, who read extracts from the "journey log" recovered from the plane. The log showed normal operation on the flight from Toronto.

They Agree With Willkie

Senator Schwartz of Wyoming, whose name suggests his descent, told his colleagues at Washington "We are now killing time while the Germans are killing English women and children, the aged and infirm." Opponents of the lease-lend bill he characterized as "whirling dervishes," and quoted with approval a statement by one of his constituents that "Nero's little effort was a small bonfire compared to what is going on in the world today."

Senator Wagner of New York, a native of Germany, in a published statement said, "If the Axis powers win abroad they will have won a partial victory over us as well. If we let Britain go down, we are deliberately selecting a line of defence most advantageous to our enemies, and we are deliberately inviting war to come to this hemisphere."

These men are qualified to speak for people of German birth or descent who are living abroad. Their definition of the aims of the political gangsters who have seized power in Germany is not to be discredited by the babbling of Lindbergh or the whoopings of Nye and Wheeler. It is only fair to German-lineage residents of Canada, as of the United States, that Schwartz and Wagner, not the others, be taken as representing their opinion of Nazism and the need of destroying it if free government is to exist anywhere on earth. That there are exceptions only proves the rule.

Yugoslavia

That Yugoslavia would—or will—follow Bulgaria into the Axis orbit has hardly been a matter for speculation. A refusal to do so would arouse amazement, as well as admiration, all over the world. For while the Serbians, who make up a large part of the population of the country, challenged the united strength of Austria and Germany in 1914, they did so with certainty of support corresponding in numbers, supplies and staying power. And though they emerged victors, they paid a terrible price for their courage.

Yugoslavia has something more than a third the area of Alberta, and a population about equal to that of Canada. Its location would make it subject to attack on every side save the short border which fronts on Greece. Beyond easy reach of help from Britain and its Allies, the Yugoslavs would have to face the desperate task of defending themselves against overwhelming numbers and still more overwhelming munitions if they dared to disobey the Fuehrer's demand for all-out surrender. As Russia would not back Bulgaria in defending its neutrality, there is no reason to suppose it would back Yugoslavia.

No doubt Axis agents, bribers and intimidators have been busy there as elsewhere. That they have more or less weakened the unity and loyalty of the nation is to be supposed. That aside, the situation of the country made it incapable of self-defence after Philoff and his associates turned Bulgaria over to the Nazis.

These Things Must Not Happen

Not every one who would make a good soldier can be sent overseas. Mr. Churchill's latest broadcast quite definitely stated that huge masses of new troops are not required there. Even of 200,000 men enlisted for overseas service, 20,000 have had to be weeded out, 10,000 because they were medically unfit, and the others for various reasons.

But every Canadian who has inherited money or accumulated money or is earning money can fight Nazism on the financial front. Fortunately, this includes almost all those who are able to work, and a large proportion of those whose working days are past. And the financial front must be held if the fighting front is to hold. Our men in Britain and on the sea and in the air cannot fight unless we supply them with the "tools," and tools cannot and will not be supplied them unless money is forthcoming to pay for the making.

What it all boils down to is this. Are Canada's soldiers in Britain going to find themselves short of cartridges if they have to meet an invading force? Are Canadian airmen to meet enemy airmen knowing that they must conserve ammunition because the supplies are low? Is a Canadian boy standing on the deck of a submarine-hunter going to have to hesitate about throwing a depth charge overboard because of knowing there are not many left?

These are hideous possibilities involved in a scarcity of munitions. Such things must not happen. Buy war savings certificates!

A Fishing Expedition

Whatever plea or threat the Fuehrer's five-man mission was told to deliver at Ankara, there is no reason to suppose why it was sent, nor as to what Herr Hitler would like the Turks to do. It was sent to nullify if possible whatever agreements were reached there during the visit of Mr. Anthony Eden. Von Papen, who is still hanging around the Turkish capital in undisguised discredit, must have thought these understandings confirmed the fears of his master since he called for reinforcements by the quickest means available.

What Herr Hitler wants the Turks to do is simply nothing. If they would oblige by standing inactive while he crushes Greece, he would no doubt make it well worth their while—in promises of territory, immunity, concessions, a place in the front row of subject states in the "new order" of degradation. If the Ankara authorities would go farther, and try to persuade the Greeks to spare Mussolini further humiliation, they might ask what they would and get it—in promises. For, with all his array of forces and impressive stage preparations, the attack upon Greece is a project for which the Fuehrer clearly has some misgivings.

These have not been quieted by the Russian note to Bulgaria. While Moscow said plainly it would do nothing to support that country as a partner in the Axis, it made no commitments on the other side of the question. If Turkey were forced to fight, Russia might not come to its aid. But Stalin carefully refrained from saying he would not, and with a fresh concentration of Russian troops on the border of the Rumanian oil field, that omission is something Hitler cannot afford to overlook.

That is a further reason why the mission was sent to Ankara to ask for assurances that Turkey will stand pat so long as it is not attacked.

A Halifax woman was fined $250, with the option of spending three months in jail, for raising rents beyond the rates charged on January 1, 1940. The rent regulations are not just official recommendations. They are orders.

In leaving Sofia, the British minister left no doubts as to why he was going. In a note to Foreign Minister Popoff, Mr. Rendel repeated in substance what that gentleman had already been told by Moscow—that he and his colleagues in joining the country to the Axis had taken "the first step toward dragging Bulgaria into the war." They will take the next and final step whenever Hitler orders them to.

Opponents of the lease-lend bill in the Senate at Washington say they are not going to stage a filibuster. At first sight the difference between delaying a bill by making long repetitive speeches and filibustering is not apparent. But there is a difference, in name, and it is important to a politician. "Debating" a measure is recognized as proper, but "filibustering" makes the voters hostile.

Any notion that Bulgaria would be a semi-autonomous country under Nazi occupation, used only as a base for attacks upon Greece or Turkey, has been officially dispelled. The United States minister at Sofia was on Friday refused permission to cross the border into Yugoslavia in order to communicate with his government. And on Saturday police at Sofia, Bulgarian or Nazi, began rounding up British, United States and other foreign residents for shipment to internment camps. There is no divided authority in territories occupied by Hitler troops.

From The News

By Harold L. Weir

Up to this week, the people of the British Empire have expressed their belief in an ultimate British victory and have been able to substantiate that belief with facts.

Today they are able to express their belief in a British victory and substantiate that belief with facts.

When Belgium, Holland, Norway, Poland and Denmark fell, military experts believed the British army could not avoid extinction on the continent. They said only a miracle could save it.

That miracle happened—the miracle of Dunkerque.

When France surrendered, the best military intelligence was agreed that Britain was in grave danger. They said that only a miracle could keep Hitler intact once Hitler turned his full air violence upon her.

Another miracle happened—that miracle of gallantry and fortitude that enabled London to stand up under the terrific bombardments of September 7 to 15.

At no time up to the present has the situation been entirely reassuring from a military standpoint. Our confidence in victory has been based on faith alone.

Today it is possible to sit down and show in black and white, according to the best military authorities, just how Hitler has virtually committed suicide by his adventure in the Balkans and how the tide has turned so that Britain, given full civilian assistance throughout the Empire, can slowly but surely decimate the Nazi war machine.

For the first time since the beginning of the war, military strategists and faith have both been able to promise victory.

There is abundant evidence today that Britain has succeeded in drawing Hitler into a major engagement in the Near East. There is reason to believe that heavy British reinforcements may have gone into Grecian territory. This can only mean that Greece is going to stand by her guns and that Turkey is ready to support her when Hitler advances.

The plain fact is that the Germans cannot stand this dispersal of their forces. They cannot possibly afford a two-front war. Even though they should enjoy a few victories in this area, they will have to ease up on the offensive against Britain while Britain, thus relieved, grows stronger and stronger, not only in defensive power, but in the capacity for offense both in the Near East and in the Nazi-dominated continent of Europe.

Aided by Nazi stupidity, Great Britain has managed to light a second fire at the German Reich's back door while the Reich possesses no more than a one-fire extinguishing apparatus.

German apologists have been thumping the propaganda drum over Hitler's "successes" in the Balkans.

In heaven's name, what "successes"?

He has taken a cruel bite out of Czechoslovakia that will make that nation hate him for all time. He has stirred up what virtually amounts to civil war in Rumania. He has clubbed Bulgaria. Germany's old ally, into letting him use her territory for a parade ground. He is threatening to attack Yugoslavia and will probably leave that country in a vicious turmoil whether he gets his way or not.

He has incited the wrath of powerful Turkey and the determination of tough little Greece.

And over all this dubious trouble-making hangs the menacing shadow of 180,000,000 Russian people who will rid themselves of the Nazi nightmare just as soon as their temporary ruler, Josef Stalin, deems it safe to do so.

Stalin may not interest himself in the security of what he calls "British capitalism". But he certainly will not lose a chance to deliver a death blow to the most immediate Nazi enemy that threatens his influence in the Balkans and his outlet in the Black Sea.

There is a report that Russia has demanded the cession of Rumanian ports on the Black Sea. If this is true, it not only indicates that Stalin is alive to the menace of Germany in this area but is pretty well convinced that Hitler is in for an early hiding.

There is another feature of Balkan campaigning that cannot be overlooked. Again may be able to put her Chinese war in the ice-box knowing that she can come back at any time to the same status quo. But that cannot be done in the Balkans.

Hitler can start a war in that territory but he cannot finish it. The Balkan martial temperament cannot be turned off and on like a tap. To feed the Balkans a belligerent diet is like giving the old plains Indians fire-water. There is no controlling either one of them.

Hitler may yet learn that to his cost.

Victory is in the air. But that does not imply or excuse any relaxation of effort.

On the contrary these indications will only be translated into fact by the use of all the Empire's monetary and man power.

There is this fact to be noted, however, that with Hitler's power declining, every dollar invested in the Empire's war effort is plainly safer than it ever was before. We are no longer asked to invest in defense. We may be asked today to invest in SURE VICTORY.

Victory pays good dividends.

Cheerful news comes from Italy. The Italian government has declared unlimited war on an enemy that has cost that country much money and anxiety.

Every citizen is being called to serve in the offensive. No effort will be spared, despatches say, to complete the annihilation of this foe.

It is absolutely the first time Mussolini has shown any sign of sportsmanship. For the enemy to be obliterated is the ladybug which is said to do great damage to Italian orchards.

At last the Duce has picked a fight with somebody his own size.

Canada Declared War

Editor, Bulletin: I heard Mr. Weir talk on the radio last Saturday evening and I enjoyed it.

In his view that the manhood of the country was not living up to their responsibility, by not volunteering for active service, I would call your attention to another viewpoint, viz. Canada as a nation has declared war on the Axis. Where a government feels that the nation calls for that definite step, then it assumes that the people are of that mind and it should call the men to the colors.

I have been talking to and listening to many of the young men around here.

They expect to go to war and are willing to go when they are required. They are not afraid and are not grumbling, but in the fairness and equal sacrifice—not one part of the country staying home and another part wielding the arms of war. All treated equally, as much as possible.

The volunteer system for a declarer of war is at the present moment simply child's play and you know it.

I wonder if it is humanely possible for Canadian M.P.'s to quit playing politics even in an emergency. W. E. FERGUSON.

Now It's Alices

Editor, Bulletin: In a recent letter to The Bulletin I see that the Marys of Canada have joined with the Dorothys to buy a Spitfire. Why do not all Alices join the forces of the Dorothys and the Marys of Canada?

I would think the name Alice a great inspiration with a cause in the present circumstances. If there are any Alices, come on, join us and carry on, and let's all pull together. Make all cheques payable to "The Canadian Dorothy Spitfire Fund." Send all letters care of The Treasurer of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Windsor Street Station, Montreal.

Allies Of Britain

The Ottawa Journal

Familiar sights in Britain today are the Polish eagle, the Czech lion, The Netherlands orange tabs, the crimson and white of Norway, ring for "Free France"—in fact all the emblems and colors of our Allies. Every Sunday night their national anthems will be played.

One village hall lent by its vicar for Polish troops bears the legend, "Poland Lives Yet!" over the door of the newspaper, and its own Polish playa. The actors are aviators who spend the rest of their time itching to get into the sky to blow their German adversaries to perdition.

There are aerodromes where the Czech flag flies alongside the ensign of the R.A.F. Here is the comment of an English sergeant: "After he'd got his first Messerschmitt his Spitfire began to come down all smoking. We thought he could not make the village, but he stayed on board and managed to land his perishing bonfire in a field. And then we found he was a Czech. I did make us proud. You might think an Englishman would risk his life to save his own village, but a foreigner!"

Norway's exploits are naturally chiefly performed at sea and there is the story of the gun-boat "Sleipner," the mystery-ship which, eluding the Germans by her turn of speed, is able still to swoop in and out of her native fjords.

The French marines have blazoned the trail of Free France on the Libyan front, and have also those Spahis, the desert cavalry which rode its horses out of Syria at the time of the French armistice in order to join General de Gaulle. There is a contingent of Belgian troops, a Belgian Congo force, and the Royal Dutch Navy, which escaped almost to a steamboat, is devotedly pulling its weight with Britain and her Allies, both in home and foreign waters. In addition to which, of course, the rich resources of the Congo and of the Dutch colonies are magnificently furnishing many sinews of war.

All these forces are animated by a crusading enthusiasm in their fight for freedom.

The interesting point has been raised whether or not Lady Halifax, who accompanied her husband aboard H.M.S. King George V, is the only lady who has crossed the Atlantic as passenger on a battleship. Certainly it is difficult on the spur of the moment to recall any similar instance.

When fourteen years ago the present King and Queen, then Duke and Duchess of York, visited Australia, they went on H.M.S. Renown, but their Canadian trip across the Atlantic, made two years ago was aboard a liner, the Empress of Australia. It was originally intended that they should travel on the Renown, but such was the international situation at that moment and our naval commitments, the proposal was abandoned.

Earl Balfour, it will be remembered, crossed the Atlantic to Washington during the last war on a destroyer, and it is also recalled that he made a record passage. A. J. B. was not a great sailor,' and on one occasion during the last war, when he was in search of a friendly destroyer crossing on a destroyer. On landing after this experience L. G. observed: "I was afraid we should go down." To which A. J. B. retorted: "There were moments when I was afraid we shouldn't!"

Most people, including a surprising number of Home Guards, seem to believe that, if and when Hitler engages his chief counter—a full-scale invasion of the British Isles—clouds of German parachute troops will be landed under cover of night.

No such idea is for one moment entertained by anyone who is a practical airman. Dropping parachutists in the dark would be about as mad-brained an enterprise as anything one could imagine. What percentage of the unlucky parachutists would break either their necks or their legs, not to mention the chance or otherwise on live wires and being spectacularly electrocuted, would be a very interesting calculation.

If Hitler invades us, or tries to and utilizes his parachutists, the latter will certainly not come by night, but most probably just after dusk or dawn. And, since the sky is always, and at both ends of the day, lighter than the earth, our alert Home Guards ought to enjoy a little first-class mixed shooting. And the same applies, of course, to any troop-carrier or glider landings.

Not only members of the legal profession will find entertainment in "On Circuit," a reliable and very human volume by Lord Justice Mackinnon. This distinguished author, during 23 years of judicial work, visited 56 out of the 61 assize towns in England. Some of his comments on these places may not greatly flatter local pride.

But he tells one story which ought to go some way to alone for the rather curious lack of really good card-playing anecdotes. At Cottesbrooke, which is Jane Austen's "Mansfield Park," there is a "Jane" pew in the parish church. It is a sort of gallery to the transept contains a set of chairs for the family and a fireplace, and is completely shielded from the gaze of other worshippers in the building by curtains. According to Lord Justice Mackinnon, about 80 years ago, the rector chanced one Sunday to make an abrupt pause in his sermon. In that moment of complete stillness the squire's voice was heard to ejaculate: "Damn it, George! Why did you lead trumps?" That must have been Whist—but Bridge.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

Mr. Robey's Report

The excerpts published by "The New York Times" on Feb. 22 from Mr. Ralph Robey's report on six hundred school text-books, prepared originally for the National Association of Manufacturers, do not seem to me to substantiate the implicit charge that the textbooks are "derogatory of the American form of government." They seem to me rather to indicate that there is still a free, inquiring, critical mind in this country and among its text book writers.

Certainly business practices come in for a good deal of criticism. Why shouldn't they? The question is not whether the textbooks criticize business practices but whether their criticisms are well founded and well argued. I think Mr. Feler's description of the technique of advertising as quoted in "The Times" from his "Elements of Economics" is largely correct. And with the world in a full state of revolution it is certainly necessary to inquire into the causes and raise the question of whether we use wealth, money and credit as productively for society as we could.

Many of the economic views expressed in these quoted textbooks are highly conservative, compared to the social and economic views of certain people who have the ear of the National Association of Manufacturers. And—from the other side—although I am no partisan of Harold Rugg, I should certainly prefer to learn social sciences from him rather than from, for instance, Mr. George Sokolsky. For I fear that Mr. George Sokolsky's views would, if put into practice, lead us straight into a far more revolutionary condition of affairs than Mr. Rugg's ever will.

These remarks do not, however, constitute an indorsement of the present status of our education. I believe that the American form of government, American law, business enterprise, the press, the trade unions—and even columnists—are all open to criticism. So, too, are the universities and the textbook writers. Free peoples live and grow by a continual evolutionary process.

My own criticism of our education is that we have too many text-books, too many second and third hand ideas, too little rigorous intellectual discipline and too much information about too many things wholly outside the frame of any standards or any points of reference.

A generation ago we taught American history in an oleographic melodramatic way: every historical figure was a hero, this was God's country and just about whatever we did was right. The reaction to this has been extreme.

An age of debunking came in, and the debunkers have swept the whole stage in the so-called social "sciences".

These debunkers are as often oblique with the truth as the others were before them. And characteristic of our education is that criticism is not made in reference to any principles, and since it is too little accompanied by attention to the accumulation of human wisdom, it leaves the student in a bleak void, or inculcates in him a know-it-all air of general skepticism.

I do not mind that the students should read Karl Marx—if they have the intellectual vigor to do so. But they don't. They read John Strachey's popularizations of Marx. And Mr. Strachey is another bright boy with a bright pen whose works have added nothing to Marx but detracted a good deal. Our "economic" students discuss gladly about the end of laissez-faire, via some textbook on the subject, but have never in their lives read Adam Smith's "The Wealth of Nations"—from which they might have learned that the man whom they are told was the parent of laissez-faire never unqualifiedly believed in it either.

They read Mr. Beard—and Mr. Rugg—on the history of the constitution, but I have never met in a college student who had read more than two or three of the Federalist papers.

They last mother's son of them has definite and dogmatic opinions about the last war, gained from textbook writers on the subject, among them Mr. Walter Millis, and almost all of them view the present struggle in the world as though it were a mere duplication of the last struggle. Actually, they know nothing whatsoever about even the last one. They have never read the distinguished and documented histories, whether from German sources, or whether from English. They have seldom read the papers of Woodrow Wilson, or "The New Freedom".

And similarly, though they know all about John Chamberlain's concept of the democratic state as a "limited racket," they have read almost no Machiavelli—who is better, and even more interesting.

They don't read de Tocqueville, they don't read Bryce, they do read the pulverizers, who also perhaps have not read neither de Tocqueville nor Bryce.

There is an almost complete neglect in our colleges of all the branches of philosophy, especially of the philosophy of politics. This reminds me that the quality which gives its ephemeral and superficial nature to the thought of most of our "educated" youth. They know a great, great deal, about a great, great many things. But their education has given them neither a personal nor a social philosophy. They haven't any point in their lives from which they look about them and to which they refer what they see. Most of our modern thinking has this fatal quality of intellectuality without foundations; of brilliance without intelligence, of knowledge without sense.

This is what makes it so easy for them to be liberals one moment and "progressives" the next, and to sail from either point into an apologia for Fascism or for Communism. The end of it all is that we seldom, they don't know what they believe in, and, indeed, they are encouraged to think that to believe in anything at all is somehow "narrow" and "old," as though the mind were something indiscriminately open to every plausible idea and was not an organ for constant precise selection, choice, association, synthesis.

They are asked, or ask themselves, every question except a few of the really important ones, such as "What, in the light of history, have been happy and creative societies?" "What, precisely, are the characteristic of modern life, must be the result of education, although knowledge of the past and respect for its accumulations are all that we have—plus imagination—to help us chart any sort of future.

Well a college student that he can learn more regarding the real nature of Fascism and its causes from Aristotle than he can from most modern writers on the theme and he gapes in astonishment, for that great, clear, free mind lived a couple of thousand years ago before there were streamlined trains, and thus inferentially has nothing to say to the human mind and the today about the essentials, in content and structure, of a good society.

Our students admire Lincoln because they have been taught that he sought to make a larger and more social democracy, which is correct—but they have been kept at the same spring from which Lincoln drank—namely the Bible, from the wisdom of the great prophets and the Inspired Gospels.

The hatred and distrust of intellectuals by the common people, which is typical of the democratic of our times, probably, has its roots in the fact that though the intellectuals know more than how people live in terms of calories, units of living space and forms of enterprise than their forebears did, they know a lot less about people as just people.

Mr. and Mrs. Lynd's "Middletown" is probably a complete "realistic" study of Muncie, Ind. But just the same, it isn't at all like Muncie, Ind., nearly as like Muncie, Ind., as Sinclair Lewis's "Main Street" is. Because human beings are simply not measurable in any really important way by the yardsticks used by the Lynds. It's a fine piece of work and worthy of reading, provided that the reader knows this.

The Gospel According To St. Mark

Chapter Four—Conclusion

And all the devils besought him, saying, Send us into the swine, that we may enter into them.

And forthwith he gave them leave. And the unclean spirits went out, and entered into the swine: and the herd ran violently down a steep place into the sea, (they were about two thousand,) and were choked in the sea.

And they that fed the swine fled, and told it in the city, and in the country. And they went out to see what it was that was done.

And they come to Jesus, and see him that was possessed with the devil, and had the legion, sitting, and clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

And they that saw it, told them how it befell to him, that was possessed with the devil, and also concerning the swine.

And they began to pray him to depart out of their coasts.

And when he was come into the ship, he that had been possessed with the devil prayed him that he might be with him.

Some Rules For Parents

From the Health League of Canada

Emily Post, that smiling, oldfashioned authority on etiquette whose face is frequently a feature of women's magazines, believes in child discipline. In her "Blue Book" on the subject, "Children Are People". Mrs. Post lays down some rules to which progressives might take exception. But these rules have a strong appeal to sanity; they meet the views of modern psychologists Some of them are:

Unhappy, quarrelsome parents make unhappy, naughty children.

Never talk to a child or correct him before other people.

Never break a promise made to a child.

Never punish a child by putting him to bed. (Bed should be pleasant.)

Spank a child only for extreme misdemeanors (for example, a temper tantrum; for shouting "Shut Up!).

Never be afraid to tell a child that you don't know, in answer to a question.

Never open a child's mail.

A child should eat neatly at two- and-a-half years old.

He should be taught to say "Yes, mother", or "Yes, Mr. Jones", and "No, mother" or "Yes or yeah", though the latter may be used at play.

A child should hold his mother's chair at table, fetch his father's hat, and open doors and lights, always knock before entering a bedroom.

Girls should wear hats outdoors. (Hatlessness is a "definite sign of inferior class".)

No girl should be addressed as "Miss" before 16 and no boy as "Mr." before 18.

The age at which a girl may go to a movie with a boy depends on circumstances. In a small town she may do so at 12; in a large city in winter, when darkness comes early she may not until after 18.

Leland Stowe Reveals The Great Tragedy Of Scandinavian Peoples

ocean being 3,000 miles wide, which it was until a few decades ago. Now it is less than 24 hours wide. The Norwegians understand all about that now, after their own disaster and when it is too late.

It is not difficult to comprehend the unhappy fate of Norway and the self-interested policies followed by Sweden, if you take note of certain coincidences. Both these countries had had too much peace and too little hardship (perhaps too little danger is a more accurate expression) throughout several successive generations. Pacifism was their passion and so, too, was material well-being. The U.S.A. of 1926-1929 was very much the same. In regard to their frailties, Americans and Scandinavians seem to have had a great deal in common. Wouldn't it be ironical, a few years from now, if some editor should be asking for an article entitled "The American Twilight."

SPIRITUALLY UNPREPARED

As an observer, watching the grim steamroller of war roll toward and over the Scandinavians, it seemed to me that these people were spiritually unprepared for the dangerous life which an era of revolution imposes, whether you like it or not. The dangerous life lay in their distant past. They had made a fetish of material security or a high standard of living, a la Calvin Coolidge and most Americans of his epoch. Even more than in the matter of weapons, they were psychologically unprepared for self-defense. This was why the Norwegians could not react swiftly, nor close up their ranks in time. Their peasants and sailors wanted to fight. Many of their white-collar class, at least in Oslo, did not seem to know how.

Today there can be no question about what Norwegians of all classes would do and want to do. But today it is too late. Even so, the record stands that many Norwegians fought gallantly and so long as there was any possibility. They were those who were ill-equipped to fight, those who were not betrayed, and those who understood the issue from the very beginning. These are the men who will lead the battle, another day, for Norwegian freedom.

When I think of Sweden, I can think of few things to make me happy. I think of Sweden and I understand Gen. Charles A. Lindbergh rather too well. I remember a conversation with a Swedish businessman on a train, just after leaving Finland at the end of January, 1940, for a few days' leave from the war. With absolute solemnity, the Swedish businessman assured me that America ought to save the Scandinavians by sending 400 airplanes to Sweden at once and 200 to Finland. The Finns had been fighting with their backs to the wall for two months and Sweden wasn't fighting at all. Nevertheless, my train companion really thought that the Swedes ought to get twice as many American planes as the Finns.

REMEMBER REMARK VIVIDLY

I remember this remark so vividly because it became symbolic of so much else that one encountered in Sweden. The Swedes were always taking care of number one, somehow rather too obviously and vociferously. They also contributed most generously to the Finns, in money and war materials—a natural thing when the Finns alone were keeping bolshevism away from the Swedish frontier. But the national policy could be summed up in the phrase, "No war—not a drop of Swedish blood!" Maybe you have heard that idea expressed somewhere before.

Well, the Swedes have got through so far without shedding any of their own blood, save that of a few volunteers who went to Finland and died in magnificent protest against a national policy which they (the idealistic and the lion-hearted) felt was as short-sighted and blind as it was selfish. I know a few Swedes like that and I shall never forget them. Unfortunately, I met so many others who had gone flabby with peace and prosperity. It was a common thing in Stockholm, during the days when the best of the Norwegians were fighting a lost cause just over the mountains, to see Swedish males expand their chests and declare, "The Nazis will never touch us. They know what we'll do to them!" Once the wind completely out of a young officer by remarking, "If you Swedes are such great soldiers, why are you always talking about it?" Suddenly he became thoughtful. It was a fact that these were the most panicky people I have ever met anywhere. (Although I must admit I wasn't able to visit Wall Street in 1930.)

With this much for background, consider how the Scandinavians tried to escape the war and what happened. Finland was bleeding and needed soldiers more than anything else. Britain and France were pressing to send them, but Norway and Sweden were being strictly neutral. They wouldn't let allied troops through. Then Norway's turn came, and the allied divisions — which might already have been in Scandinavia — couldn't get there in time. United we stand. Divided we fail.

A month before the Soviets finally smashed the Mannerheim line, Finland appealed to Sweden for two army divisions. Naturally the Swedes were afraid of Germany. Even so, had they been bold, they could have sent two divisions and called them "volunteers" just as the Nazis and Fascists had done in Spain. That was early in February. It is doubtful whether the Nazis would have attacked them. They were not ready to strike until April. Two Swedish divisions would have saved Finland and tied the Russians for another two or three months.

CONVICTIONS CONFIRMED

In Moscow, in May, my own convictions of the previous February were more than confirmed by observers who have lived in the Soviet Union for many years. They said that two more months of the Russo-Finnish War would have completely shattered Soviet communications and morale. Chaotic conditions would have paralyzed most of the country and Dictator Josef V. Stalin's regime would have been shaken to its foundations. In any case, the Red army and the bolshevist system would have been so weakened they would have been removed as a menace for the duration of the European conflict. Two Swedish divisions would have paved the way for this, and perhaps for a revolution against Stalinism in Russia.

Had Norway and Sweden taken the bold course of Scandinavian unity, the bolshevist bugaboo would have been exploded, allied troops would have been rushed to where Hitler could not have conquered Norway in a single blow — the blitzkrieg against Holland and Belgium would necessarily have been postponed — quite possibly France would never be unconquered today, and most of Scandinavia, in all probability, would still be free. And the allied divisions — which might already have been in Scandinavia — couldn't get there in time. United we stand. Divided we fail.

ARMY & NAVY STORE TO SELL MEDICINE AT 25c FOR 2 DAYS

Offer Is Good Friday and Saturday Only; Preparations Made for Large Crowds

If you were told that by simple clipping a coupon from a newspaper you could get a high-quality medicine for 25c, it would sound unbelievable, wouldn't it? Yet it is true and such an offer is being made here in Edmonton tomorrow and Saturday by The Army & Navy Dept. Store.

Why Offer Is Made

This offer is made because we believe everyone who suffers should have the chance to try a medicine at small cost to see if it will help them before they buy it at full price and because we believe many sufferers in Edmonton and vicinity need the medicine we offer.

The medicine referred to is a new, scientific formula of 15 roots and herbs and other splendid medicinal agents known as Mosby's Tonic, which has helped so many Canadian people. Therefore, we offer each person a liberal introductory bottle for 25c (tomorrow and Saturday only) because we believe those who are benefited will keep on using it. The price of the regular size of this medicine is $1.35.

How It Acts

Mosby's Tonic is taken after meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus helping Nature eliminate the poisons that foster stomach troubles and cause either the kidneys and liver to function more properly. It gets within 10 minutes to relieve pains, soreness, heat and belching. It will not grip or nauseate you like so many medicines. It will make your liver more active and help clear away the old bile from your system. At the same time, Mosby's Tonic helps Nature by its diuretic action upon the kidneys to relieve backache.

Now, whether or not it will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will relieve your suffering in a day or a week remains to be seen. But owing to the merit of this medicine, it could be in your own interest to try it for 25c.

This offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once.

What It Will Do

Mosby's Tonic will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe) and tone them into better daily action.

It will bring out gases and impurities that frequently cause the stomach to may have been the real cause all along of your sick headaches and stomach distress.

Mosby's Tonic will help Nature relieve indigestion, difficult breathing due to gas, dizziness and pain in chest due to stomach gas.

It will give you a new appetite, a real desire for food.

Mosby's Tonic will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys, relieving backache, sharp pains and disturbed sleep caused by disordered action.

It will help clear up skin eruptions that are caused by the impurities in the organs, thus avoiding the sallowness and "muddy" complexion that is due to sluggish liver.

By removing accumulations of poisons from the kidneys and bloodstream, it helps relieve rheumatic and neuritis pains.

Mosby's Tonic will make your STOMACH, LIVER, KIDNEYS and BOWELS more active, build you up in general and make you FEEL like a different MAN or WOMAN

NORWEGIAN FLYER VISITS RELATIVES

Arne Wiste from Lillehammer, Norway, paid a flying visit to his uncle, Dr. Wiste, father, his sister, Mrs. Karl Konkalsrud and his brother, Olaf Wiste, here last week.

Gathering together a few personal effects and some money he had succeeded in concealing from the Nazis he slipped across the Swedish border, last November, thence by way of the Soviet Union, Japan and trans-Pacific, mostly by airplane he arrived in Vancouver where he visited the Norwegian consul. Arrangements were made for him to join the Norwegian Air Force in training in Canada.

During his long trip across the Soviet he was several times detained by police.

On Saturday Kenneth, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Skramstad was taken to the K. H. P. Memorial hospital in Bonnyville suffering from severe earache. Dr. Sabourin discovered and removed the body of a large fly. The lad will be kept at hospital for a few days.

FERINTOSH

Pioneer Dies

William Joseph McClary, pioneer of Ferintosh, died recently at the age of 76 years. Funeral was held from the town hall. Mr. McClary is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret McClary; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Campbell; and nieces and nephews.

pert propagandists and foreign agents boring from within, using the oldest bolshevik technique, all over Europe and in their own lands. But they chose to believe, as one young Swede expressed it to me that "No Swede would ever betray his country." He might as well have said that no Swede or no human being anywhere loves money. So long as there is greed and selfishness and overweening ambition, treason will remain a powerful political factor throughout the world. Hitler is intelligent. He knows that very well.

Sweden possessed good weapons and quite a strong army for the size of her population, but she failed to use her army—and now she is being conquered from within. You cannot keep "realism" or "being sensible" "adjustment to the new era" out of any country, regardless of its size, with 60-ton tanks—even a million of them. You cannot bar treason with 16-inch guns or with thousands of flying fortresses. Sweden's frontiers are still technically invisible, and she now has parliamentary government only by sufferance. One of these days that will disappear, failing to earth with the empty shell of what was once Scandinavian freedom. The Swedes placed it safe—or did they play directly into the hands of the expert propagandist pairs of Hitler, Goebbels, and Himmler?

GOT SELF-SAID "VIED"

The Scandinavians had a great and splendid idea, the idea of free and progressive democracy. They showed what liberal parliamentary government could do for the material well-being of their citizens. But they got self-satisfied and somewhat flabby. They were very grateful for the good fortune and idea if it is great, must be worth living for and worth dying for. They forgot that wealth is easy to lose. This is why twilight has fallen over Scandinavia, as it may yet fall over America.

What about the Finns? They lost a war—and won a victory that will live forever. There is no twilight in Finland. That's all.

Looking them Over

By JACK KELLY

TODAY the Edmonton Flyers took off for Calgary and tonight the interest of every Alberta hockey fan will centre on the battle raging between the Flyers and Stampeders in the Calgary arena. It is the third of a best of three series for the right to enter the provincial senior final. Flyers and Stampeders each have won one game.

There is only one possible way in which tonight's game can be anything but decisive—if it finishes in a deadlock. In such an event, a fourth game would be necessary. This possibility however is considered so remote that officials have given no thought to where a fourth game would be played.

Tonight's game will be playoff hockey at its hottest. A single bum move may be enough to eliminate a team. The arena will be packed to its rafters and the air will be charged with that tension that you only find when the chips are all down in a final playoff that means everything to both clubs.

Right now I imagine the Stampeders are doing more worrying than the Flyers. The Calgarians know that they are not as powerful as when the Flyers handed them two straight defeats on their own ice and they know that the Flyers are perhaps even more powerful today. Furthermore, they know that the Flyers never have been front-runners. All season they have been coming through when it looked as if they couldn't. Secretly the Calgarians are afraid that the Edmonton club has at last caught fire—and that the Stampeders may blow in the clinch. They know for example that the final string of victories that hoisted the Stamps into second place over the Flyers were nothing but gifts since they were achieved at the expense of the Turner Valley club that had already given up all title hopes and was just going through the motions to complete the schedule.

Don't be surprised if the Flyers win tonight and go on to open the Alberta final against Leithbridge on Saturday night. All the Edmonton club needs to win is half the breaks. If Joe Brown and Eddie O'Keefe are right, Calgary hasn't a pair anywhere near their equal as goal scorers. While the Flyer defense is not as reliable as you might like, they are good enough to ride herd on the Stampeders.

Flashes From Here and There

AMONG the shedders of copious tears after last Saturday's running of the Santa Anita "Hundred Grand" was the Baja California Turf Club. That organization lost $35,000 in future book bets when Bay View won. That surprising nag opened at 100-1 in the club's book and owner Anthony Pelleteri put a big chunk of cash on its nose. Mixland opened at 4-1 to place and owner Charles Howard took a big slice of that.

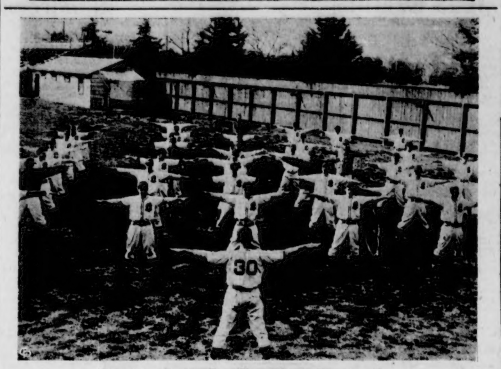

If you have a hankering to go in for track events, have the family doctor check your pulse count. Dr. Deaver of the faculty of the New York University has been checking pulse counts on athletes for some time and he finds that all good distance men have a count much lower than the average person.

Distance men who win titles and set records generally have a pulse count of less than 60 says Dr. Deaver. The average man's count is about 72. Nurmi's count was 47, Glenn Cunningham's is 42 and Leslie MacMitchell, the new mile sensation at N.Y.U., has the almost unbelievable count of only 38.

Fatigue saturation is apparently geared to the beat of the heart. If the heart beats fast, the man tires fast and vice versa.

Canmore Trounces Mountain Park 7-3 In First Of Alberta Intermediate Finals

CANMORE, March 6.—(CP)—Canmore Briqueteers took the first game of the best-of-three Alberta Intermediate Hockey final series by defeating Mountain Park Provincials 7-3 here Wednesday night. Next game will be played at Camrose Friday and if a third game is necessary it will be played at Camrose Saturday.

Winners of the crown will go to Vernon, B.C., where they play the British Columbia Intermediate champions in the Western Canada semi-final series for the Edmonton Journal Trophy.

The Saskatchewan and Manitoba intermediate teams play off in the other semi-final bracket. The title was won last year by Swift Current Indians.

A large crowd of fans witnessed the fast game which saw the Canmore club have complete control of play throughout.

The first period was opened with a goal by Stanley from Chakowski for the Briqueteers. During the second frame Chakowski made a spectacular solo followed with two more tallies for Canmore by Antonuk receiving from M. Gilowski then Anderson.

Mountain Park rallied with five men up, Atkinson scoring from E. Bello.

In the third period Mountain Park, making a strong effort to recover, scored twice. Harrison from Collins followed with E. Bello, carrying the puck from a scrimmage at centre, scored.

From then on Canmore had its own way, Stanley taking advantage of a break, scored with two more by Stanley from Jerwa then Chakowski.

KING CRASHER TO GUARD GATE

WICHITA, Kans., March 6.—(BUP)—The world's No. 1 gate crasher sold out to the "interests" today.

One-eye Connolly, who claims to have crashed more gates than any other individual, signed a contract with officials of the National Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament to act as head gate-keeper. He will be in charge of all gates during next summer's tourney and be on the pass gate "in person."

"I know the guys who try to get in on passes—they're plenty tough, but they aren't real gate crashers," Connolly said. "I'm going to crack down on them."

The 65-year-old Connolly said his deflection was a "vacation."

Challedon To Take Long Rest

LOS ANGELES, March 6.—(AP)—Owner W. L. Brann said Wednesday that Challedon, one of the top handicap horses of 1940, would be given a rest after the close of the Santa Anita meeting next Monday.

Challedon is slated to run in the 1½-mile $50,000 San Juan Capistrano Saturday. He was injured earlier in the season and has run far back in recent races.

Thunderbirds will open their best of five series with Victoria Dominoes for the British Columbia senior hoop title here March 14. Both teams are former Canadian champions.

BROWNS UNCOVER JUGGERNAUT IN WALTER JUDNICH

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 6.—(AP)—Once upon a time New York Yankees made a mistake.

He is Walter Franklin Pudnich—and St. Louis Browns might, if pressed, consider trading him for a first left mortgage on the Fort Knox gold hideout. Of course, the Brownies would expect you to throw in a couple of sextrics who could pitch.

The highly-valued Mr. Judnich is a left handed outfielder who came along as a rookie last season and:

1—batted .303; 2—belted 24 home runs; 3—led all American League outfielders, defensively, with a .989 percentage; 4—led the Brownies in runs batted in with 89.

"Greatest young outfielder in baseball," said Manager Fred Haney Wednesday.

A couple of seasons ago Judnich was a Yankee chattel. He played on the Newark, Kansas City and Oakland farms. He drove in better than 100 runs each season as a Yankee farm boy.

Judnich was colossal in the majors. Patiently, Haney worked on his one batting weakness—an inclination to wave at high, hard ones.

"Now he is a boy who can win ball games with just one swing," says Haney.

Kimberley Beats Nelson In Opener Of Semi-Finals

NELSON, B.C., March 6.—(CP)—Kimberley Dynamiters edged out Nelson Maple Leafs 2-1 here Wednesday night in the first game of the best of three West Kootenay Senior Hockey League semi-final.

Winner of the series will meet Trail smoke Eaters for the league title which is equivalent to the senior championship of British Columbia.

Mike Patrick and Sam Calles scored the Kimberley goals with Jack Kilpatrick netting the lone Nelson counter.

Maple Leafs started fast and marked up their goal in the first four minutes of the opening period. Jakie Mann took the puck in Nelson territory and passed to Leo Bicknel who charged through the Kimberley defence. Bicknel then passed to Kilpatrick, the latter drifting a shot into the corner of the Kimberley net off King Campbell's pads.

Six minutes later Benny Redisky was checked at the Nelson defence line but managed to pass to Calles as he went down. Calles' shot beat Jesse Seaby in the Nelson goal to tie the score.

Both teams failed to take advantage of a number of scoring chances in the second period and the Dynamiters took command of play in the final frame.

They failed to find the Nelson goal until three minutes before the end, however, when Mike Patrick took Curly Hunt's pass and backhanded a shot from left wing into the corner of the net. Redisky started the play inside the Nelson blue line and was credited with an assist.

Third Period Attack Fails To Overcome Early Leaf Lead

Maple Leafs finished on the play-off end of a 7-5 score in their playoff with Edmonton Athletic Club at the Arena on Wednesday night and as a result have a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series.

The Leafs ran in three quick goals following one by Jack Isaac for the E.A.C. in the first period, and were never headed, although seriously threatened in the final minutes of the game.

The game was a typical Leaf-E.A.C. encounter with plenty of fire thrown in here and there which developed into an all-out battle with less than two minutes to go.

Considerable illegal checking and tripping was allowed to get by even in the first period and the result-ant free-up was accordingly no surprise.

THE FIGHT STARTS

At the time the fight started the E.A.C. were pouring on the pressure and Carney's goal just before—at the 18:44 mark to be exact—had brought the score up to just 6-5 for the Leafs.

The puck was inside the Leaf blue line and the defenders were being hard pressed. MacPherson and Klesko came together and after a few dagger looks Klesko started the fisticuffs going and several more joined in.

While the E.A.C. had a one man advantage, Dea being in the penalty box, and Douglas had just gotten out, through an odd quip in the rules they automatically lost that edge as a result of the fight and Klesko struck the first blow at that.

The officials bundled off two from each side, Klesko, MacPherson, Pringle and Lewis and as Dea had jumped out of the box he was handed another. However, the upshot of the affair was the Leafs gained due to the ruling that only two men from a side can be penalized at a time.

However, the Maple Leafs deserved the verdict as to the game because they capitalized better on fewer chances to score than their opponents had and Ken McAuley played another grand game in the nets.

Jack Isaac opened the scoring in the first period on a play with Lewis, although the puck actually went into the net off A Leaf skate.

PRINGLE GETS TWO

Alex Pringle evened the count from Dutchak's pass and added another at 14:37. The last was of the fluke variety, the same as the first E.A.C.- excepting that the method was different.

Blefgen made a stop, but as the result of the subsequent chop by two players the puck went over the goalie's head as he was in front.

Jack Dea made a swell goal at 16:06 on a lone rush and then Scotty MacPherson pulled off a thrilling solo for an E.A.C. marker.

Klesko scored twice for the Leafs in the second, the one in the last minute of play being a particularly neat bit of work.

In the last period Bim Barker counted on a play with MacPherson at 8:14 and Douglas got one for the Leafs at 12:39.

On tieing up in the latter goal Douglas made a break-away with only Lewis back. As Lewis went to check Happy he was taken out of the play by a Leaf in true football interference style, but the officials let the goal stick.

The final goal was made by Stan Deviciq on a beautiful solo from behind his own blue line.

LINEUPS

Maple Leafs: McAuley, Dea, Douglas, Pringle, Dutchak, Deviciq, Gregor, Klesko, Sneddon, Bim Barker.

REGINA JUNIORS BEAT NOTRE DAME

REGINA, March 6.—(CP)—Regina Generals made it two straight over Notre Dame Hounds in the best of three semi-final series for the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League crown by trouncing Hounds 7-1 here Wednesday. Generals won the first game 6-2 Tuesday night.

They now meet Saskatoon Junior Quakers, winners of the league schedule, in a best of five final. Dates for the series have not yet been announced.

The Reginans went into a 2-0 lead before the half-time mark of the first period. Frank (Tiny) Smith slammed in Notre Dame's lone counter at 13:07. Generals scored only one goal in the second however, but caged three in the last stanza.

Regina scorers were Gronsdal and Smith each with two and Tilson, Bell and Orban.

Girls' Basketball

The usual double header games of the city girls' basketball league are scheduled for the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium Friday evening.

The Spruce Grove team will meet Westmount at 8 o'clock and the St. Mary's high school plays Bissell at 9 p.m.

An executive meeting will be held previous to the first game of the evening, timed to convene at 7 o'clock.

RUGBY UNION MEETING CALLED

CALGARY, March 6.—(CP)—Annual meeting of the Western Interprovincial Rugby Union will be held here Sunday it was announced Wednesday night by Johnny Thompson, president.

Expected to attend are Joe Ryan, Frank Hannibal and W. Brown of Winnipeg; J. N. Taylor, Dean Griffing and C. Warner, Regina; Moe Lieberman and Ken Montgomery, Edmonton; Vere Carmichael, John Bannerman and John Thompson, Calgary.

There is also a possibility of a Vancouver delegate attending the meeting together with delegates from the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta Rugby Unions.

Cunningham Leads American League

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 6.—(AP)—With only a few games left, Les Cunningham, Cleveland ace, tallied a goal and figured in two others last week to bring his total to 62 points and virtually clinch the American Hockey League scoring honors.

Fred Thurler of Springfield kept pace, scoring thrice to move into the runner-up spot.

Ed. Bush of Providence, with 31 minors, four majors and a match penalty, appeared also to have annexed the "bad man" title.

GLACE BAY WITH BORROWED GOALIE TAKES BIG LEAD

HALIFAX, March 6.—(CP)—Of all varieties of human emotion running through hockey-mad Cape Breton in these playoff days, the happiness that has engulfed Glace Bay is the most striking. And in sharp contrast is the doleful doubt which grips Sydney.

Benefitted by addition of Bill "Legs" Fraser, North Sydney Victorias' goalie in the Colliery League schedule, Glace Bay's Miners have a three-game lead in the seven-game final series with Sydney Millionaires.

The M.A.H.A. gave Glace Bay the right to use Fraser for an indefinite period when regular Goalie Jimmy Foster and Substitute Earl Boates were lost, Sydney has protested his use.

Elsewhere in the Maritimer, Truro Bearcats, champions of the A.P.C. League and the Navy, kingpins of the Halifax City League, are battling in the finals. Halifax won 5-0 in the first game last night.

Saint John Beavers are kings of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island and meet either Truro or the Navy for the right to square off against Cape Breton's best in the Maritime finals.

Premier Campbell Curling President

TORONTO, March 6.—(CP)—Thane Campbell, premier of Prince Edward Island, Wednesday was elected president of the Dominion Curling Association at the Association's annual meeting here.

Alberta Tied With Ontario For Lead In Macdonald Brier Curling

Dominion Championship Will Be Decided Today

By SCOTT YOUNG

TORONTO, March 6.—(CP)—The unpredictable Don Best from Kirkland Lake loomed after last night's play as the man who may hold the future of the Canadian championships for 1941 in his slim hands—hands which can draw a curling stone to a dime or without warning blow a shot wider than the most inexperienced rookie.

Wednesday afternoon, in the fifth round of the 15th annual Macdonald's Brier Tankard event, Best's Northern Ontario four blew handsomely to lose 14-5 to Alberta. Wednesday night the same rink curled with faultless precision to crack the unbeaten record of Perry Hall's Kitchener, Ont., rink at five with an astonishing 11-9 victory.

The result left Ontario tied in first place with Howard Palmer's Alberta representatives, each with five wins and one loss.

Alberta stopped Freddie Heath's Nova Scotias 12-7 last night while Albert Wakefield's Manitoba rink defeated C. H. Handley's shorthanded Quebecs 13-7 and Bill Dunbar's Saskatchewan four won 10-5 over Billy Findlay's British Columbia quartet.

FOUR-WAY TIE

Northern Ontario, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan are tied with four wins and two losses each behind the leaders. British Columbia has three and three, Prince Edward Island one and five. New Brunswick and Quebec are winless in six games.

The first seven rinks were still in the running for the league and the Canadian crown when the last day of the four-day event started this morning, with three draws scheduled. But the chances of all save the leaders are slim, and the match which likely will decide the championship is in the morning draw—the Brier's seventh round—between Alberta and Ontario.

Best's surprising showing against Hall was a climax to his hot and cold play throughout the previous five rounds. Defeated in 17 consecutive games when this event started, he won his first three games without difficulty. Then he dropped his first Wednesday afternoon to Palmer of Alberta, 14-5.

COULDN'T MISS

But last night Best's rink could do no wrong. His lead, G. W. "Pop" Sayles, was curling like a good skip and at times Bill Rushworth, the second, and Cliff Tuck, third, were out-curling their pilot.

Hall made a brave bid to make up the four points he needed for a tie on the last end, but Best's curlers played knockout until Hall had only three rocks left and four points to go. Best curled in a fine shot around a wide guard to knock out one of Hall's three counters near the end of the match and Hall's count of two was only a formality.

Northern Ontario counted three on the 11th end, with Hall resting on both his rocks. After Cliff Tuck had drawn for shot rock Hall tried a knockout and missed. Then Best drew in close and Hall missed another attempted knockout shot. Best's draw almost to the button gave him the three.

ALBERTANS HUSTLE

Alberta was forced to some pretty curling to shake off the challenge of Heath's Nova Scotia knockout artists, who led 5-4 at the end of the fifth. Skip Palmer counted three on the sixth when Heath missed a knockout shot on his first rock and a draw on the second while Palmer curled both rocks into the house.

On the seventh Alberta scored again when Palmer's last rock drew to shot and Heath failed with a roaring knockout that shook the end of the rink. On the eighth the Heath rink was unsteady and Palmer drew in three out of his first five rocks, then set up a strong guard, helped by a couple of Nova Scotia rocks which had stopped short of the house. The final end was dead, the Alberta curler content to play knockout until the evaporation of Heath's mathematical chance of catching up.

DUNBARS TAKE FINLAY

Bill Dunbar's Kinley curlers had some trouble with Billy Finlay's smooth-curling Vancouver rink near the first of their match but drew away about half way. Rolly David was curling well for Finlay and the Vancouver rink was missing few shots. But Dunbar was on and his rink was on—a combination hard to match.

On the eighth Dunbar drew his last rock around a couple of guards to take out Finlay's shot and tie two. Previously, on the sixth, he had pulled a difficult shot around a shot.

Eddie Shore Gets Big One

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 6—(AP)—Owner Eddie Shore pulled his Springfield Indians into a 4-4 overtime tie with Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League Wednesday night by scoring 15 seconds before the final bell.

Joe Krol, Larry Thibeault and Charley Mason netted the Indians' other goals. Vince Germain, Red Hamill, Roger Jenkins and Pet McReavy neted for the Bears.

RAMBLERS 3-1

PHILADELPHIA, March 6—(AP)—Philadelphia Ramblers Wednesday night defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1 in an American League Hockey game.

Allan Kuntz, Stan Smith and Herb Foster scored for the Ramblers and Archambault netted for Pittsburgh.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 6—(CP)—New Haven Eagles continued two points ahead of Philadelphia in the battle for the American Hockey League's eastern division third place by trouncing Indianapolis Caps 3-2 last night.

Earl Roche scored two and Vic Myles, Bus Mancuso and Connie Tudin one each for the Eagles. Connie Brown and Jackie Keating scored for Indianapolis.

Finlay rock. The official umpire, W. E. MacMurtry, measured the rocks before awarding the point to Saskatchewan.

The Manitoba-Quebec match was almost ignored in the interest of the other matches, but the fans who watched the contest between the Wakefield and Handley rinks saw one of the best of the night. Both rinks were playing well with Quebec greatly improved over previous form. A shaky start put the Manitobans down at one point, but they came back capably.

SHOT THAT FAILED

One of the best shots of the match was a shot that failed. In the sixth end, with Manitoba lying one and an almost impregnable array of guards set up around the counter, Handley tried to draw through a port so narrow the rock missed almost touching guards on each side as it came through, only to fall a few inches short of lying shot.

New Marks Set In Bowling Tournament By Bobbie Bruce, J. McKenzie, E. Oakley

Several more marks were shattered in Tuesday's session of the annual five-pin tournament at Recreation alleys as some of the trundlers unlimbered their heavy artillery. The outstanding feature was the singles score of 363 chalked up by Miss Bobbie Bruce of the Southpaws while bowling in the mixed team event. Bobbie also wound up with a 774 for the highest lady's three games.

Southpaws took over the lead for mixed teams with 3,554.

Five entries have been received from Calgary, two for the men's teams, two for mixed and one ladies' team. They will be bowling on Saturday and include the best bowlers in the southern city.

HOGAN PLAYS THRILLING GOLF FOUR-BALL FINAL

CORAL GABLES, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Little Ben Hogan climaxed the United States golfing thrill show Wednesday with a great exhibition of shot-making down the home-stretch as he and the ever-colorful Gene Sarazen won the $3,000 international four-ball tournament.

Hogan's great run of birdies sent Sam Snead and Ralph Guldahl reeling into the ropes, but it was a typical Sarazen finish that delivered the knockout punch in a 4-and-3 decision.

Sarazen, whose two eagles had high-lighted the earlier rounds, chipped the ball into the cup from 25 feet for a birdie four that closed out the match on the 550-yard 33rd hole. Except for that one shot, however, Sarazen might as well have stayed in the club house with his fatigue-averting vitamin pills.

Hogan, 140-pound Hershey, Pa., pro, uncorked a five-under-par 30 on the out nine and altogether scored seven birdies in 14 holes.

The triumph was worth $1,000 apiece to Sarazen and Hogan, with Snead and Guldahl collecting $500 each.

CLEVELAND BOSS GETTING PEEVED OVER CRITICISM

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 6.—(AP)—Cleveland Indians' President Alva Bradley vowed Wednesday to "tell the true story of last summer's trouble" between the players and discharged Manager Oscar Vitt if the Indians again this season were made the target for such applications as "cry babies."

"I kept quiet at the time because the idea of hurting anyone was distasteful to me," Bradley said. "Already I see signs that some of Oscar Vitt's friends among the non-Cleveland newspaper men are not willing to forget.

"The minute it becomes evident that the players will be subjected to any such abuse as they took last season I'll tell the whole story."

Bradley's remarks were prompted by an open letter to him in the Cleveland News, calling on the Tribe president to "go to bat for his ball players," who rebelled against the reign of Vitt.

Vitt was replaced last fall by Roger Peckinpaugh. Vitt is managing the Portland, Ore., club.

German Consul Had Millions For Espionage

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—(AP)—A complaint filed in federal court Wednesday represented that Fritz Wiedemann, German consul-general here, had received from Germany more than $5,000,000 to be used in espionage activities in the United States and other parts of the western hemisphere.

The complaint, a civil action, was filed by the attorney for Mrs. Alice Crockett of San Francisco, who claimed Wiedemann sent her to Germany on a confidential mission, and had refused to pay her. She demanded $8,000.

Mrs. Crockett's complaint charges that Wiedemann, who was superior officer over Hitler in the first Great War, had told her it was the plan of the German government "to promote strife and class hatred . . . for the purpose of destroying unity and undermining the strength" of the United States.

Another allegation was that he was "active in secretly storing large quantities of ammunition," particularly in New Jersey and other eastern states, "to be used by the (German-American) band in fighting against the government of the United States."

Divorce Refused

KEY WEST, Fla., March 6—(AP)—Judge Arthur Gomez Tuesday denied a divorce to Mrs. James J. Walker from the former mayor of New York. Mrs. Walker, the former Hetty Compton, charged Walker with extreme cruelty. Judge Gomez ruled the evidence failed to show incompatability, which is not a ground for divorce under Florida law, rather than cruelty.

Royals Win Calgary Juniors

CALGARY, March 6.—(CP)—Royals won the third and deciding game in the Calgary Junior Hockey League, defeating Mustangs 3-2 in the Arena Wednesday night. Mustangs won the first game 10-3, but Royals copped the second 6-5 in overtime.

Royals will now meet the winner of the Lethbridge-East Coulee series. Don Adcaam, versatile athlete from Okotoks, paced Royals to their victory in the crucial contest, scoring three of the goals.

LANDIS TURNS MINOR LOOSE

CHICAGO, March 6—(AP)—Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis Wednesday declared John Novakovich of Los Angeles a free agent and decreed that the St. Louis American League club (Browns) or any subsidiary or affiliate may not contract with him within three years.

Landis said Jack Fournier, scout for the Browns, "induced" Novakovich, a high school boy, to sign an "offer" on November 11, 1939, under which Novakovich agreed that if he decided to enter professional baseball after graduation from high school in 1941 he would sign with the Springfield (Ill.) Browns for $100 a month at the start. The Springfield club of the Three-I League is affiliated with St. Louis Browns.

"This document was, of course, utterly worthless for any purpose other than causing Novakovich erroneously to believe that he was under obligation to sign a contract as therein mentioned," Landis ruled.

Canada Answers Britain's Call For Army Needs

VANCOUVER, March 6—(CP)—Col. W. C. Woodward, executive assistant to Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply, told the Vancouver Board of Trade Tuesday that Canada has answered Britain's call to produce almost all war supplies needed by the British army as well as for Canadian forces.

"We are manufacturing, or in the process of manufacturing, everything the British army needs, with the exception of the heaviest calibre guns. Eventually, however, we hope to be able to manufacture these too," he said.

Cargo Of Chalk

BOSTON, March 6.—(AP)—The hand-carved and machine-gutted Norwegian freighter Favorit arrived in port Wednesday with 3,300 tons of chalk from the British Isles. Members of the crew told of the vessel being attacked by German planes almost nightly while docked in the Thames estuary.

King, Queen Tour Clydeside Docks: Workers Cheer

GLASGOW, March 6.—(CP)—The importance of speedy unloading and turning of merchant ships was stressed by the king Wednesday during a tour of the Glasgow and Clydeside docks.

"Are you clearing the slips and turning them around quickly?" he asked J. C. MacLean, secretary of the Scottish Transport and General Workers' Union.

MacLean assured him that all energies are being directed toward unloading ships in the shortest possible time.

"I am glad to hear that," the King said. "It's of vital importance in these days."

Hundreds of dockworkers gathered around the King and Queen cheered as the royal couple walked to the water's edge and inspected the busy wharves.

FARMERS TOLD OBTAIN SUPPLY FEED AT HOME

Requirements Should Be Purchased Before Grains Shipped Out

With favorable prices for livestock and abundant supplies of coarse grain feeds, every farmer should obtain his requirements in his own community before coarse grains are shipped out of the province in volume, according to Hon. D. Bruce MacMillan, minister of agriculture.

Mr. MacMillan on Thursday made the following statement:

"I have been asked to comment on the Dominion policy of freight assistance to farmers of eastern Canada who wish to procure feed grain from western Canada.

"I understand this policy provides for the payment of one-half of the freight from Fort William to Provincial destinations, providing the eastern provinces share equally by paying half of the regular freight. If the provinces take up the proposal, the movement is limited to eight million bushels.

DEMAND IN EAST

"The policy is of interest to the Alberta farmers by reason of the demand for coarse grains in eastern Canada. While there are ample supplies of oats in the province for both feed and seed, there is a demand for barley to finish the increased number of hogs going to market. The farmers of Alberta should examine their feed requirements for the present year, and make sure that sufficient barley is retained to properly finish the lambs, feeder cattle and hogs. It is likewise suggested that seed barley be procured as early as possible in order that there shall be no shortage of seed in the province to take care of the increased barley acreage which is recommended in Alberta this year.

"With favorable prices for livestock, and such abundant supplies of coarse grain feeds, every farmer should obtain his requirements in his own community before coarse grains are shipped out of the province in volume."

HIGH OFFICERS AT INSPECTION OF FUSILIERS

Carrying out various battalion manoeuvres in smart, snappy style, and displaying a keen spirit for the work on hand, the Edmonton Fusiliers, CA(A), were inspected Thursday by Major-General W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., K.C., Inspector-General of Canadian Forces for Western Canada.

With Maj.-Gen. Griesbach were Brig. F. M. W. Harvey, V.C., M.C., District Officer Commanding M.D. No. 13, with headquarters at Calgary; Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., Area Commandant, and Major D. G. L. Cunnington, M.C., G.S.O. 2, of M.D. No. 13.

The regiment, which has been in training at the Prince of Wales Armory since last August, was drawn up outside the armory and new Victoria High school.

A general salute was given by the regiment, under Lt.-Col. Harcus Strachan, V.C., M.C., Officer Commanding, on arrival of Maj.-Gen. Griesbach.

Following this the regiment carried out a series of battalion manoeuvres. Later the troops marched in close column of platoons and in column of route.

The ski company, the armored cars mounting Bren guns, and other equipment were on parade, and made a favorable impression on the large crowd of spectators.

Following the marches past, the regiment was dismissed.

In the afternoon Maj.-Gen. Griesbach inspected the regimental equipment, hutments, mess rooms, cook houses, clothing, kits and other phases of regimental life.

Following his visit to this area, Brig. Harvey, accompanied by Maj. Cunnington, left for Camrose to inspect the military training centre there.

Japs "Practice" Military Landing Observers Claim

SHANGHAI, March 6—(AP)—Foreign military circles in Shanghai said today that Japanese military landings yesterday in southern Kwangtung might be "practice" for further Japanese operations in the southwestern Pacific.

Except that the Kwangtung coast was virtually undefended, the landings were similar to those the Japanese would have to make if they should attempt to seize the Netherlands East Indies.

Today's War Moves

ed the Allies would be able, with Turkey's help, to overwhelm the Germans in southeastern Europe and so end the war.

DEADLOCK EXISTS

Even though France has surrendered since this plan of operations was formulated, a deadlock does exist in the west, as between Germany and Great Britain. To that extent, General Weygand was right.

He did not foresee, however, at the time of France's capitulation, the failure of the Germans to destroy the British air force and the resultant inability of Hitler to order an invasion. Nor did he anticipate the collapse of the Italians in Africa and the Greek success against the Fascists.

These events have weakened the Axis and have altered conditions in southeastern Europe and the Middle East. More especially, the restlessness of Russia over Germany's movements toward the Dardanelles has made it necessary to revalue German military policy in that area.

The war will not now be won or lost in the Near East through actual battle. Entanglements there, however, will contribute to the final decision.

As the conflict has developed since France's capitulation, the Germans have been compelled to scatter their efforts from one end of Europe to the other. Concentration on a major objective, which is the keystone of German grand strategy, has not worked.

ITALY CAUSES TROUBLE

Italy's poor power of attainment has caused Hitler much serious trouble. Spain has been unable to help the Axis because of her economic crisis. France in defeat has added to the Fuehrer's confusions, due to Marshal Petain's undeviating insistence on literal interpretation of the armistice terms.

Thus Germany has become perplexed, with Hitler yet unable to remain inactive because a conqueror involves himself in domestic danger if he ceases to press forward. So the Fuehrer is seeking some means of action in southeastern Europe, though saying as in last week's speech, that he prefers negotiation to combat.

Interpreting War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

THE strong phrases with which Britain severed relations with Bulgaria prepared the way for Anglo-German hostilities in the Balkans; yet there are signs that a shift to bombs instead of hard words may yet be delayed.

Fulfillment of the British threat to bomb the Germans in Bulgaria necessarily will be delayed in any case until the British and pro-British diplomatic missions in Sofia leave. That has been set for the week-end, or beyond.

Nor does it seem likely that the Germans swarming across Bulgaria to the Greek border will move on immediately. By every indication from Ankara and Athens, that would invite a major war in the Balkans. Moreover, Russia's attitude must be reckoned with, especially in view of reports that she is demanding Black Sea naval bases from German-dominated Rumania.

Until Yugoslavia joins the Axis bloc (as it is indicated she will do shortly) there seems every reason for a Nazi delay to consolidate the German army grip on Bulgaria.

London, as well as observers on this side of the Atlantic, has been convinced that Germany is as reluctant to bring on a two-front war now as she was 18 months ago. Her main "victory" effort still is against the British Isles, not in the East.

It seems possible that Britain is trying to induce the Yugoslavs to make non-involvement of their own country and non-use of her territory to attack Greece, a condition of whatever deal they make with Berlin.

That would be important. The river valley route through Yugoslavia toward Salonika is more favorable for German army use in some ways than the mountain passes and poor roads of Bulgaria. Maintaining a supply line for major military operations against British-Greek bombers in Bulgaria would have its difficulties.

Foreign Minister Anthony Eden is reported master-minding British diplomatic and military moves in the Balkan theatre, London having given him a free hand as the man-on-the-spot. If that is true, as it seems to be, there is every indication that he is counting confidently on Turkey as well as on Greek determination to fight it out to the bitter end.

Pilot Leaves To Search For Plane

Pilot Joe Irwin left Edmonton at noon Thursday for Calling Lake to renew the search for Pilot R. Walter Kiehlbauch who has been missing for a month in the Pelican Mountain district. Pilot Irwin has been given leave by Canadian Airways to work on the search.

He is using a Fairchild plane owned by the missing pilot, which was in storage at Chipman. Pilot Kiehlbauch failed to arrive at Calling Lake while flying from Peerless Lake in a commercial fish company plane.

German Use Of "Lone Wolf" U-Boat Attacks Is Expected

Shipping Raids By Groups Of Subs Discounted By U.S. Experts

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(AP)—Predicting the pattern of Germany's spring sea offensive against British shipping, authorities here said today that each one of the scores of submarines employed probably would be assigned "lone wolf" roles within neighboring but distinct areas of the sea.

The experts believe it was a number of such "lone wolves," rather than a group of submarines hunting together as a pack, that caused recent reports of "massed" U-boat attacks on a large convoy.

OUTLINE OF TACTICS

They expressed belief that the tactics now employed by the Germans, and destined to be used with increasing force when the weather improves, follow this outline:

The sea around Britain is divided by the German navy's high command into "traffic lanes," each a mile to five miles wide and paralleling one another.

Each "lane" is then divided into sections, and each section assigned to a certain submarine which would be free to operate more or less independently.

When a large enemy convoy approaches, the first U-boat to detect it does not attack the leading ship but waits until a number of vessels are strung across neighboring submarine lanes.

Then several of the submarines attack different ships simultaneously.

GROUPS CREATE RISK

Their opinion that submarines probably are not and will not be operated in groups moving close together except in attacks upon heavily-armored battle fleets, is based upon experience in the last war when it was found subs working as close-knit combat units ran a grave risk of hitting one another with angling torpedo shots at merchantmen.

Fatal Crash

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 6.—(AP)—Lieut. William A. Sally, 24, was killed and Lieut. Paul H. Snow, 24, escaped serious injury when their United States army training plane cashed.

MANITOBA WILL SEEK AID FOR DIRECT RELIEF

WINNIPEG, March 6.—(CP)—Representatives of rural and urban Manitoba Wednesday voted to send a delegation to Ottawa to urge the Federal government to continue its contributions to the cost of direct relief in the province after March 31.

Only the approval of the provincial cabinet is needed and this was considered but a formality.

(The Federal government recently announced that 40 per cent of direct relief costs in all provinces which has been paid by the government would be discontinued after March 31.)

Earlier Premier Bracken, presiding at a meeting of the municipal representatives, said the provincial government was prepared to seek some measure of help from the Dominion in financing relief expenditures. The provincial government's decision, however, might be changed if the municipal delegates produced evidence that the relief situation was not as serious as the government believed, he said.

Coast City Will Have Blackout Test On Friday

SEATTLE, March 6.—(AP)—The first blackout test in a major United States city will darken this community of nearly 400,000 for 15 minutes Friday night.

Defence committee leaders, who have spent weeks in perfecting plans, predicted that hardly a light will be visible when army and navy planes soar over the approximately 104 square miles of the city's limits.

When the warning signal is sounded by factory whistles and sirens over every radio broadcasting station in the city, 10 minutes before the blackout time, wardens will order motorists to the curb, house owners will pull down their shades and in most cases turn out their lights and night life in the Pacific northwest's largest city will come to a sudden halt.

Which Hat Will Suit My Face?

This Is What Every Fashion-Conscious Woman Wants to Know

If you're face is inclined to be round—a wide brimmed hat (A) will make it seem thinner. If your face is long, the little flowered chapeau (B) covering part of the forehead will make it seem shorter. If your face is short, the high crown of the poke bonnet hat (C) will add length—And if your are tall, a sailor or straight brim (D) will help you take off a few inches. These are only four examples of our wide selection of millinery. Come in and see them—you'll feel the real thrill of Spring when you wear one of these models.

THE Premier made his first speech in the current session yesterday. Or is this his effort for the next four years. At any rate he makes them short. Unanimous support for Government's resolution approving the Savings Certificate drive was asked for. He didn't get it.

Edson's Angus Morrison supported the premier (figuratively). Maybe it's the mountain air.

Edmonton's D. M. Duggan called for support of War Savings but charged that the Premier had tacked on a clause about financing that spoiled the resolution.

No reasonable reason why "reasonable" shouldn't be deleted from proposed resolution, Mr. Duggan intimated. The house intimated 18 to 35 against him.

Hugh John Macdonald and Angus Morrison carried on strenuous private debate over their back fence.

Mr. Duggan was caught pointing his finger and jerked it out of the argument. It seems you can't even point after you've grown up.

If the objectionable portions were only minor ones, why didn't he let them go, the Hon. Lucien Maynard asked. The House then heard a long discussion of monetary theories. Mr. Maynard's throne speech came a day late.

"Why not use every method possible," Mr. Maynard asked with reference to the war effort. "Savings certificates are only a drop in the bucket anyway." "Shame", shouted Hugh John Macdonald. He withdrew the remark on the Speaker's ruling. Mr. Maynard declared he was conscientiously trying to suggest means of increasing the war effort. In so far as saving certificates were concerned, he and the government were whole-heartedly behind the movement.

And now we know what those big books were that Mr. Maynard was studying all last week. He was swatting up on Alfred Speakman's parliamentary speeches, the ones where Mr. Speakman was said to have launched the first Social Credit theories. They'll have to call it the "Blue Hansard" now.

It looks as though Sedgewick's A. E. Fee will have to show Drumheller's persistent young hopeful how to spring a laugh in the house. The poor boy needs coaching.

According to Mr. Maynard, Calgary's J. J. Bowlen has also boomed out as a Social Credit advocate, at least Mr. Maynard found an ancient resolution of the house in which Mr. Bowlen had supported issuance of credit and currency to meet social and economic needs. With Bowlen and Speakman both originating Social Credit theories, where does this fellow Douglas get off at.

George MacLachlan of Pembina was also a monetary reformist as long ago as 1933. Tut, tut, which is the Social Credit side of this legislature anyway?

"It's more patriotic to give money and take interest free certificates for it," Mr. Maynard declared, "it might shame the banks." "Never", someone shouted. Maybe so, but why not see your banker, he might make a 'note' of it.

It appears that the older $3.00 bills used to be marked "redeemable in gold". Remind me to look at the first one that comes along—if ever.

The Hon. Mr. Fallow is a handy man to have around the house. When the lights flickered out during the attack of Mr. Maynard's speech, Mr. Fallow just slipped out and fixed them up in a jiffy. I wonder how he is on electric toasters.

And now the secret about Andy Davison comes out. Mr. Maynard says the opposition are sabotaging confidence in the government—and sabotaging the constituted authority is anarchy. Well, well! Our peeps the man with the shaggy whiskers. Bombs!! And we'd always supposed that evil smelling thing that the Calgary mayor kept lighting was only a cigar.

Redwater's J. M. Popil gave vent to his artistic leanings during the afternoon by drawing an outdoor setting with a great big Christmas tree. That looks as though he must have been thinking of dividends.

"The Right Honorable, the Premier," Mr. Speakman said when he referred to Mr. Aberhart. If these fellows don't cut it out, they'll have this turned into a federal parliament yet.

The house was reminded of the old Prosperity Certificates and the stamps. A bit stickey. Eh? What?

Mr. Speakman administered a rhetorical spanking to the junior men across the floor. He declared that the only men in the house who had had no previous party affiliations or political background were the ones who had never previously taken any interest in their country's affairs.

DIVINE WILL ONLY SOURCE OF AUTHORITY

Harold Weir Addresses B'nai B'rith Meeting Here

"Jewish theocracy is the basis of world civilization just as it is the basis of Christianity," said Harold L. Weir, associate editor of The Edmonton Bulletin addressing a B'nai B'rith meeting in Talmud Torah hall Wednesday night.

It was the Jew, said the speaker, who first gave humanity the doctrine that the Almighty is the only source of temporal authority. Upon this doctrine all civilized political structures are used.

This is the philosophy, declared Mr. Weir, which is in direct conflict, in this war, with the philosophy of the Nazis.

"The crux of the struggle," he said, "is this: that where the totalitarian looks for his honor and glory and his salvation to the power of the human intellect or to that mystical nonentity he has deified as the state, the opposing philosophy of the Democracies, which in this case is an essentially Jewish philosophy, looks for salvation, material and spiritual, directly or indirectly, to the intervention and guidance of God."

The speaker declared that anti-Semitism became most active when the spiritual consciousness of humanity burned most dimly.

The paganism of the totalitarians, Mr. Weir pointed out, could not tolerate the Jewish influence which always tended to prove that government is a spiritual rather than a material entity and that temporal power must be subservient to divine power.

THE QUESTION

It isn't exactly balmy yet, although that's more than can be said for a whole lot of us, but warmer weather is really just around the corner. What are we exuding all this prattle about? Spring, of course. How does it effect you?

THE ANSWERS

TILLIE DUPERRON, telephone switchboard operator: There are really no reasons for one as those who hold the spirit of romance perpetually in their hearts but at the same time there is undoubtedly an added sweetness, a greater depth and scope to life at this glad season of the year.

MARY KLYMOK, soda fountain expert: The young man is not the only one whose fancy turns with lightness at the glad spring season. Do I make myself clear?

PAT PATTERSON, husband of a garden-loving housewife: Spring gives me little cramps and I tell you why. Pretty soon now the spade, the hoe and the rake will stare pointing figurative fingers of accusation in my direction. How can one harbor thoughts of love, flowers are such stuff when one thinks of the back-aches that are just around the corner?

HUGH McDUFF, knight of the road: Boy! Oh boy! I can hardly wait. Those boxcars and those mulligans in the jungles will sure look and taste good after a winter of soft life in the cities. Spring and the open road. Oh boy!

LOVELY OLD LADY past the three score mark: Spring makes us all feel young again, because it proves there will always be a new season of hope and new life after a winter of bitterness and strife.

And now the secret about Andy Davison comes out. Mr. Maynard says the opposition are sabotaging confidence in the government—and sabotaging the constituted authority is anarchy. Well, well! Our peeps the man with the shaggy whiskers. Bombs!! And we'd always supposed that evil smelling thing that the Calgary mayor kept lighting was only a cigar.

Splendid results are being achieved by the volunteer women canvassers in their house-to-house drive in aid of war savings certificate sales, it was reported Thursday by R. E. Staples, Northern Alberta chairman.

Without exception they have been given the utmost co-operation by Edmon'on's citizens, he stated, and the results of the canvass are far beyond the greatest expectations of the committee.

The house-to-house canvass of the city will be discontinued on Friday and all volunteer workers are asked to bring their returns to the central organization office not later than 6 p.m. on that day.

In one case, stated Mr. Staples, a canvasser received pledges from 14 residents to make monthly purchases aggregating $10. The canvasser had fourteen houses to call on, and never failed to get a pledge to purchase certificates. In many cases purchases were already being made, he added.

GIVEN WELCOME

One canvasser reported that two old age pensioners, man and wife, received her with delight. They had been worried about their part in Canada's war effort. The amount they could put into the purchase of War Savings Certificates seemed to them to be so small. They were eager for the guidance the canvasser could give them, so that they could participate with the growing army of workers in helping Canada and the Empire.

The result of that canvasser's visit to these old people is that they are pledged purchasers of War Savings Certificates, each agreeing to set aside one dollar monthly.

EAGER AND WILLING

"No salesmanship was necesary to obtain the pledges of these two old people," stated the canvasser. "They were eager and willing to do their share, the real trouble was to keep them from doing more than their share, so anxious were they to help."

"We can save a little here and there on the household expenses they agreed as they signed their pledges to purchase a war savings certificate through their joint contributions," the canvasser reported them as saying.

"This is the sort of response the canvassers are getting everywhere," stated Mr. Staples. "Reports come into the office would indicate that Edmontonians are doing all they possibly can in purchasing these certificates."

ENDS THIS WEEK

Country organization and canvass will continue until all districts have been completely organized and visited. Owing to the very severe weather and snow bound road conditions it has been impossible to complete this phase of the campaign.

H. A. Craig, chairman in charge of rural organization, reports that organization work in practically all districts is now complete or in hand and that the canvass results are excellent.

In the Waskatenau district members of the Veterans' Volunteer Reserve inaugurated a war savings stamp campaign in connection with the five district schools. They offered each pupil undertaking to fill a book with war savings stamps the first stamp free. The offer was taken up gladly by the teachers in the schools and 38 pupils in three of the schools are now nearing the completion of their first book.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION OFFICER CONFERS HERE

Conferring with union officials here, Woodruff Randolph, of Indianapolis, Ind., secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union and the International Allied Printing Trades Association, spent Thursday in Edmonton.

From here he will go to Vancouver to make arrangements for the I.T.U. convention to be held in that city in August.

The executive of the Edmonton branch of the union will hold a dinner for Mr. Randolph Thursday at the King Edward hotel and in the evening a general meeting will be held in the Labor hall, where the official will meet the members here.

War Savings Honor Roll

Edmonton's quota of 18,000 persons pledged to the monthly purchase of war savings certificates for the duration of the war will be more than reached when the campaign in the city closes on Saturday, R. E. Staples, Northern Alberta chairman of the war savings campaign, stated Thursday. "I shall be surprised if the total number of pledges is not over the 20,000 mark," he said.

Pledges were pouring into the central office during the first four days of this week, and many firms were rushing to completion the canvass of their employees.

Although all returns from the employer-employee pay roll savings campaign may not be finished by Saturday, said Mr. Staples, "I am more than confident we will exceed our quota. The canvass of business firms with five or more employees will be continued until every firm in the city has been contacted."

Bringing the total of Gold Honor Awards to 289, four Edmonton firms were awarded the coveted award on Thursday. The firms receiving the honor were:

George A. Touche & Co.
Kinnaird & Aylen.
Nash & Nash.
Royal Fruit Wholesale.

Jimmy's Just A Little Lad But A Grand-Uncle To Seven

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

RIMBEY, Alta., March 6.—Jimmy Bunch, just five years old on February 21 last, is an unique young gentleman. Despite his tender years (and that military look he's adopting in the picture) he is grand-uncle to seven people, two of whom are older than he is! He works out:

Jimmy's father was 56 when Jimmy was born, and already the father of a married daughter who was then grandmother of two children. Since then she has become the grandmother of five more which makes our Jimmy grand-uncle to all seven. Entirely unperturbed by it all, Jimmy celebrated his fourth birthday by eating porridge out of his favorite birthday present, a fancy red bowl, the gift of The Bulletin's news representative here.

Jimmy

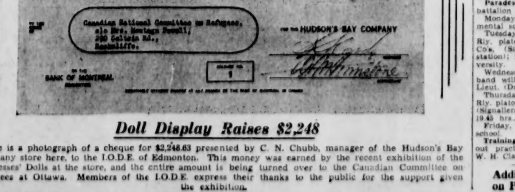

Jimmy finds there are certain advantages to being a grand-uncle—if he can get away with them. Many people may not know it, but it is traditional to allow an uncle to eat with the grown-ups at the table. More than likely Jimmy's mama won't allow him to observe this privilege, however.

Winter Making Exit Rapidly

Winter is making a rapid exit these days, aided by a bright sun, clear skies, "fair and mild" forecasts and well-above-zero temperatures.

From 26 above reading at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, the mercury slid in the night to a low of 8 above at 7:30 a.m. Thursday, but by 8:30 a.m. it was on the way up at 13 above and the barometric pressure was 27.52 increasing.

Maximum near north reading is 33 above at Dawson Creek and the minimum is 2 below at Athabasca. It is clear and calm throughout the north and ceiling and visibility are reported unlimited.

Doll Display Raises $2,248

Above is a photograph of a cheque for $2,248.63 presented by C. N. Chubb, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company store here, to the I.O.D.E. of Edmonton. This money was earned by the recent exhibition of the Princesses' Dolls at the store, and the entire amount is being turned over to the Canadian Committee on Refugees at Ottawa. Members of the I.O.D.E. express their thanks to the public for the support given the exhibition.

EXTENSION TO S.A. HUT FOR MEN NOW OPEN

Salvation Army Provides Fine Auditorium for Service Men

Nearly 500 soldiers with friends of both sexes attended a ceremony marking the opening of a fine new auditorium, seating about 800, an extension to the Salvation Army's Red Shield Hut at the Prince of Wales Armories Wednesday night.

Deputizing for Mayor John Fry, who was unable to attend, due to a previously accepted engagement, Ald. Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., Area Commandant, officially opened the fine new building.

Speaking both on behalf of the city and as area commandant, Lt.-Col. Brown, stated he was sure he voiced the sentiments of the mayor and of the citizens of Edmonton in general in paying high tribute to the Salvation Army for the splendid work on behalf of the troops.

WORTHY OF PRAISE

The commandant said his first contact with the Salvation Army came in the days before the first Great War, when he was a member of the Mercantile Marine. It was comforting to be able to drop into Salvation Army quarters in distant ports. The work of the Salvation Army in the last war was worthy of lasting praise, he concluded.

Rev. Capt. Canon C. F. A. Clough, military chaplain for the Edmonton area, was also warm in his praise of the Salvation Army. While these were evil days it was a great comfort to know that the evil was productive of new knights fully as good as those of the past. The Salvation Army provides for the material as well as the spiritual welfare of the boys, the chaplain observed. He was in particular, pleased with the "quiet room" where men may go to meditate and pray, Capt. Clough said.

ONE OF FINEST

Capt. F. L. Crumblehulme, Auxiliary Service officer for No. 13 district said that while the Red Shield for the Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A., Canadian Legion or Knights of Columbus auxiliaries in this war.

Brig. L. Ursaki, division commander of the Edmonton division, Salvation Army, was master of ceremonies and introduced the various speakers.

Lt.-Col. W. Oakes, inspector of Salvation Army War Services, buildings and equipment for Canada, stated the new auditorium was one of the finest in the dominion. The speaker said it was one of 100 huts built and maintained by the Salvation Army since the start of the war in Canada. In addition the Salvation Army has 2,000 men engaged in the auxiliary war services, with 22 special trained officers serving overseas.

APPRECIATED BY MEN

Maj. D. Rea, hard-working supervisor of the Edmonton Red Shield Hut, told of the work carried out to date in Edmonton and of the new work planned following opening of the annex.

Six moving picture shows a week are held in the new auditorium.

That this and other features, such as the library, are greatly appreciated was tumultuously expressed by the soldier boys present.

Rev. H. E. Wakelin, secretary of the ministerial association, led the gathering in prayer, while scripture reading was given by Mrs. L. Ursaki, wife of the brigadier.

Rousing marches were played by the Salvation Army Citadel band, with anthems by the Citadel songsters.

Oil Expert Here

Robert E. Allen, chairman of the Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board, is a visitor in the city, registered at the Macdonald.

HALF BILLION BARRELS OIL ARE FORESEEN

Robert E. Allen Predicts Large Development In Alberta

He expected that in the next 10 years as much as half a billion barrels of additional oil reserves would be discovered in Alberta, Robert E. Allen, chairman of the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation board, told members of the Rotary club at a luncheon address in the Macdonald hotel, Thursday.

Andy McCulloch, president of the club, was chairman.

"I would not attempt to estimate the total reserves of this province, however," Mr. Allen said, "than I would attempt to estimate the wheat crop by looking at one field.

"As an oil-producing province," he added, "Alberta is in my opinion in almost exactly the same position as it was as a wheat producing province about 1900. And this same statement applies to the Edmonton district."

FUEL RESOURCES LARGE

Mr. Allen told the Rotarians that, before he came here, he was impressed by the fuel resources of Alberta, which looked large on the statistical map of North America.

For all the oil of Texas and the coal of Wyoming, Alberta's fuel resources are larger than those of either of those two states, he said, due largely to the vast coal deposits.

Back In Moscow

MOSCOW, March 6.—(AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps, British ambassador to Moscow, landed at the Moscow airport Tuesday on his return from Turkey.

ALBERTA BUDGET IN LEGISLATURE ON MONDAY NEXT

Alberta's budget for the fiscal year commencing on April 1 next and ending March 31, 1942, will come into the legislature next Monday, according to present plans, Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, said Thursday.

While it had been expected the budget would be ready immediately after the debate on the speech from the throne was completed, the decision by the Dominion government, announced only a few days before opening of the session on February 20 that as from March 31 next, it would withdraw from the agreements under which it paid 40 per cent of direct relief costs, entailed considerable revision of budgetary requirements.

The province announced that it would take over the Dominion's share of direct relief. This meant additional burdens estimated at about $800,000 for the coming fiscal year. It is the government's intention to find this amount by pruning other expenditures. This has taken time.

INCREASE FOR TELEPHONES IS REPORTED HERE

Indicative of Edmonton's expansion in 1941 is the interim report submitted by Supt. Robert Christie of the city's telephone system, which shows there are 767 more telephones in use in the city up to March 3 this year than at the same period last year.

Total number of telephones in use in the 1941 period was 19,932, while last year the number was 19,165. Revenue for the period under review shows an increase of $6,674.94, increasing from $113,701.99 to $122,376.91.

Further increases in the number of telephones in use can be expected when the extension of the north and south exchanges has been completed.

Work on the 300 telephone extensions at the north and south exchanges is being done at present, with a contract awarded to Campbell Bros. (Canada) Ltd., Winnipeg, supervising.

This work, however, cannot be completed until equipment manufactured in Britain has arrived. Part of the equipment is expected on hand, and advices from the British company are to the effect that all equipment for the $37,000 order placed last year has been completed and is awaiting shipment to Canada.

Hooke Proposed Deputy Speaker

Carrying out a decision of the government, Premier William Aberhart has placed a resolution on the legislative order paper that Alfred J. Hooke, S.C., Rocky Mountain House, and a member of the Social Credit Board, be appointed deputy speaker of the assembly. It is likely the resolution will be discussed Thursday. No other name is expected to be submitted to the house for this post.

At a caucus of Social Credit members last fall, Hon. Peter Dawson was selected as speaker and was duly elected by the house at the opening of this session on Feb. 20.

Two Juveniles were held by police for a time Wednesday and later turned over to their parents, after P. Steele, 9514 100 street, reported theft of 24 empty bottles from his basement. The two boys were picked up by police in a prowler car close to the Steele home. They are aged 11 and 12.

Edmonton's civic budget figures are practically completed, stated John Hodgson, city commissioner, Thursday, and it is anticipated that city council will be informed on Monday night next that the special meetings to consider the civic estimates will start Wednesday of Thursday of next week.

Number of persons employed by the provincial government as their urgent agriculturists in the years 1936-1940, inclusive, and how many were employed full and part time, is being sought in the legislature by John J. Bowlen, Ind., Calgary. He also seeks to find out the names of such employees and the districts in which they were employed.

Charged with uttering forged documents to obtain respective sums of $2666 and $4.70, Mrs. Irene Ann Hamilton, 10 Ave. and 5th St., Calgary, was remanded for supreme court trial by Magistrate Harold Hawe in city police court Thursday. The offences in question were alleged to have been committed in the Mundare district. H. White is acting for the two accused.

Funeral services were held Thursday. A daughter, Mrs. C. W. Traves, 10924 78 avenue, is in Vancouver to attend the funeral. She is the wife of C. W. Traves of the provincial department of agriculture here. Mr. Strachan was a bugler with an Ontario regiment during the Riel Rebellion, and was decorated for the part he played. He went to Vancouver in 1913.

Alberta Nurses To Add Their Weight Of Numbers And Money To Aid Overseas Nurses

AWAKE to the urgent needs of nurses now serving in hospitals and nursing homes in Great Britain, for whom the war has brought increased demands on time, labor and money, and who, through recent bombings of hospital centres, have lost most of their supplies and equipment, and in full recognition of the fact that their profession is one of the most vital and gallant forms of wartime service, Canadian nurses are preparing to do their part to assist their overseas sisters

The need is great. Through recent communications received by both individuals and nursing groups in the Dominion it has been revealed that many nurses have already lost their lives in the service of their country; that many, while on active service have lost home, supplies and valuable nursing equipment.

It is to relieve a part of this loss, that the nurses of this country are preparing a Dominion-wide effort to raise money. Communications from the Royal College of Nursing in London reveal the present condition of nursing service. Faced with the task of keeping their usual high standard of service, executives of the college are faced also with a shortage of funds due to the war, increased calls on their services and loss of supplies, loss of hospitals and hospital equipment, loss of training schools and personnel.

"War on our doorstep," reads one article, "has brought new problems. There is urgent public health work to do—in the rest and feeding centres in the crowded underground shelters of our big cities, among the workers in munitions factories, with the mothers and children evacuated wholesale to our country districts.

LION'S SHARE

The college is taking a lion's share of this work. With the combination of these new civilian nursing needs and of army, navy and air force nursing assistance required, the nurses are in need of great help.

To meet this need, the Canadian Nurses' Association is requesting the help of every province. Already, in response to the appeal from abroad, the sum of $2,000 has been forwarded for immediate relief work; the sum of $1,000 to the Civilian Nurse Air-Raid Victims' Fund and $1,000 to the Royal College of Nursing

There is need of further aid. Every province will be asked to help through its local branch. In this province the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses has shouldered the responsibility. It is the desire of the provincial body to contact every nurse, whether active or retired or married, and Alumnae and active groups of each hospital.

The association has a registration of 1,200 nurses now, but the help of every graduate nurse, married or single, active or retired is requested With a membership of 16,700 in the national association, it is felt that a tangible war-time service will be done if each Canadian nurse pledges even a small amount each month.

ALBERTA PRESIDENT

Miss Rae Chittick, president of Alberta Association of Registered Nurses and members of the provincial executive are working on details of the campaign. Others on the executive include Miss Blanche Emerson, Edmonton, and Miss Kay Connor, Calgary, first and second vice-presidents Mrs. H. M. Vango, Edmonton secretary-treasurer; Miss Ida Johnson, Miss Catherine Clibborn and Miss Anne Young all of Edmonton, executive members

Communications and donations should be addressed to the Alberta Association of Registered Nurses, St. Stephen's College, University of Alberta campus, Edmonton

Normal School Pupils To Give Fine Tableau

OUTLINING in colorful tableau form the fascinating story of the building of Canada—from the days when Indians alone were residents of this wide land until today when many racial strands intermingle their customs, culture and ambitions to make up a happy and composite people—students of the Edmonton Normal Practice School will be seen in their annual public presentation on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week in the school auditorium.

Seventy-five students take part in the presentation, which has been called "Canada Tableau." Funds from the performances will be turned over to the Canadian Red Cross society. Students have taken part in the direction of the play, in the making of the background drops as well as in the acting out of the different acts.

Opening scene shows the spirit of Canada, "Miss Canada" and the first natives of this land, the Indians. Through this little scene the Indian contribution to Canada's national life is shown. In the second scene, in modern times, the interior of a Britain bomb shelter is shown. This represents the British contribution of courage, loyalty and devotion given to the Canadian people.

In each of the succeeding scenes, some national phase of Canadian life is seen. There is a French Canadian scene, where French Canadian habits are shown, where typical songs are sung and when the language of the people is spoken. In the Scotch and Irish scenes, the spirited music and charming songs, the national dances and customs are unfolded. The tableau goes on to include the Scandinavian, with their love of sports and athletics shared with Canada—the Ukrainian with their national love of color in design and life—the Dutch with their industry, the Greek with their beauty and the Chinese. At the end Miss Canada again appears to welcome all the differing peoples as her own.

Organizers were Miss Rennick and Miss Moon. Mr. Bothwell was in charge of business arrangements and Mr. Goulson supervised the making of stage settings. Miss Jays is in charge of make-up, Mr. Doucette and Mr. Mottus of the lighting. Mrs. Higgin is in charge of the music, Miss Wright is pianist

Mr. Doucette was head of the staff advisers. Staff members assisted materially with the production

EASTER BONNET, 1941 STYLE

There's pleasant promise in fashion news these pre-Easter days that this spring's hats will be prettier than they have been in many a day. This is a pretty fashion forecast for Easter bonnet smartness. A tall raffia rose in rose-to-wine shades tops this citrus green baku from Frank Borel's new collection, worn by screen actress Jean Kelly. The pale blue band forms a scarf. This is a "natural" for spring's first navy silks, lingerie blouses and small prints.

United States Women Aid Britons With Collections Of Many Needed Articles

By GLADYS ARNOLD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Always noted for their ingenious ideas, American women, aided by American children, from Los Angeles to New York, are turning their attention to piling up comforts for shelter-dwellers, air raid victims and Britain's homeless. Ships filled with clothing and medical supplies are a high mark of their effort.

From Boston British War Relief Society comes the story of an appeal for mats, rugs and small bedside comforts to be used in women's billets of army territorial services. Through the Boston representative in London, this suggestion came from Queen Elizabeth herself when asked what Boston could do.

"Women are called out of their beds to answer alarms and service calls constantly," said the Queen's message. "These rugs would provide a bit of cheer and comfort for them and cut down the number of colds from sudden chills."

Tickets for the British war relief ball, organized for Feb. 20 in Boston, sold fast. Everything was donated, from invitation printing to prizes, food and flowers. Boys and girls in historic London costumes sold flowers and articles donated to swell the fund.

GOTHAM'S EFFORT

"Young America Wants to Help" is a New York organization of children under the direction of Mrs. Kermit Roosevelt. Valentines in the shape of warm baby clothing, overcoats and medical supplies were bought through their efforts to be shipped abroad to British babies

Girls in 37 New York public and high schools are sewing for Britain. They have already forwarded more than 2,000 garments through the American Red Cross, the material being supplied this organization.

Garments include dresses, nightgowns, panties and slips. They are made for cheildren from six to eight years old. In one school small girls crocheted 10 woolen afghans which now are in use in London shelters. Another high school made 50, six by four feet in size. A third group made 350 woolen coat dresses which were sent to England as a Christmas present and more are on the way.

DOVER TO DOVER

Women have started "namesake" funds in many cities and towns. Dover (Hell's Corner), England, has been adopted by Dover, Mass., and thousands of dollars sent to aid the victims of air raids and long range shelling

But there are more than 2,000 such "namesakes" in the United States and most of them are busy raising funds. In one city representatives from more than 30 such funds met for lunch and the monies raised were cabled to England at the end of the meal. Among them were represented Ipswich, Newark, Annapolis, Norfold, Lynn, Greenwich and Cambridge.

"Bundles for Britain," an organization operating from coast to coast, has its name on articles ranging from "eau de cologne" to "victory" stockings. Recently they shipped 15,000 items of clothing, 9,150 knitted garments valued at $40,000. Articles from this group include many comforts for men air raids precaution workers, fire fighters and observers

The British War Relief society is selling brooches and clips with the "lion rampant" on it for $1. The pin costs 30 cents and 70 cents goes to the fund.

Other forces are not forgotten. This organization in New York spent $70,000 for a complete mobile hospital unit which now is serving General de Gaulle's forces in Africa.

The "Aid to French Wounded" have forwarded more than $18,000 to Britain, while the Polish associations of two small cities, Worcester and Chelsea, Mass., alone have sent over $12,000 to aid Polish refugees.

Housewives Feel Better If There Is Cake In House

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

When there's a first-class cake in the house, the average housewife feels happier about her menu problems. If she considers the nutrients in her cake recipes and uses them as part of her daily nutrition total,

OLD-FASHIONED JELLY ROLL

Three-fourths cup sifted cake flour, ¾ teaspoon combination baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 4 eggs, unbeaten; ¾ cup sifted sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup jelly (any flavor).

Sift flour once; measure. Combine baking powder, salt, and eggs in bowl. Place over smaller bowl of hot water and beat with rotary egg beater, adding sugar gradually until mixture becomes thick and light-colored. Remove bowl from hot water. Fold in flour and vanilla. Turn into 15x10-inch pan which has been greased, lined with paper to within ½ inch of the edge, and again greased. Bake in hot oven (400 deg. F.) 13 minutes. Quickly cut off crisp edges of cake. Turn out on cloth covered with powdered sugar; remove paper. Spread with jelly and roll. Wrap in cloth and cool on rack. Cover with whipped cream, if desired, and garnish with cubes of home-made jelly.

CHOCOLATE MARBLE CAKE

One-half cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup milk, 2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 ounces chocolate.

Cream shortening, add sugar, eggs and vanilla and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk and beat until smooth. Spread half batter over bottom of cake pan greased and lined with wax paper.

To remaining batter add melted chocolate. Beat well and spoon irregularly over plain batter. Bake 40 to 45 minutes in moderate oven (350 deg. F.).

Bulletin Patterns

Young, Long-Waisted Dress

There's nothing like a bright new frock to give you a new outlook on life. Here's a smart 'round-the-clock one-piece dress in two-piece effect — Pattern 4713 by Anne Adams. "All the news in print" is shown here. The popular long-waisted look that gives such a sleek, smooth hipline is nicely complemented by the well-shaped side-front bodice sections. There are soft gathers for bustline flattery. The back bodice has the lower waistline too. Have the neckline high and round and let the bodice button all down the front. Or cut a V-shaped neck and use gay buttons for trim. A belt from the sides may tie in back, if you like. You might make the front and the back panels and the hip-yoke of the side front and back bodice sections and the sleeves in spirited contrast.

Pattern 4713 is available in misses' sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 39 inch fabric.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

There are so many food fads that it is hard not to believe that perhaps you need something special to help you deal with avoirdupois. Some of the self-styled food experts will try to impress you with the divination that "You, madame, are the potassium type," and that you need more of this element in your menus to keep you slim.

Or, they may tell you that you are not eating foods in the right combinations—that that's the whole trouble with your weight. Or, you may be assured with earnest fervor that you need a dash of magnesium to bring out your magnetic personality.

Usually, the stress is given to some obscure mineral, one you don't hear much about, and it seems almost logical to believe that the lack of some such element in your diet—rather than just too much food—is making you fat!

PROBABLY CALCIUM

If any mineral is lacking, it is very apt to be calcium, phosphorus or iron. These are rarely stressed by the faddists. There's no mystery in them. But they are, nevertheless, the ones that are important. And if you get enough of these minerals, you get all the others—they are present in the same food sources.

No food combination is going to make you slim unless it is low enough in calories. There is no combination of foods that has any chemical reaction against fat. The thing to be sure of is that the foods comprising your menus supply all the protective elements.

If you are looking for novelty in your menus, you'll find it in the behavior of protein. A diet high in protein speeds up the tissue metabolism. That means you can lose weight a little faster on the same calorie allowance when a good share of the calories are in the form of protein. The protein foods are: lean meats, fish or fowl, eggs, skim milk, cheese. They should be included every day—not merely to expedite your loss of weight, but because they furnish repair materials for wear and tear. Another advantage of the protein foods is their high satiety value. They help you to feel well fed on your diet.

Here is another scientific tip that will help you to reduce: Pure fats are two and one-fourth times as fattening as any other food element. An ounce of sugar and an ounce of butter weigh the same, but the sugar counts 113 calories and the butter 218. You can reduce faster by cutting fats to the minimum. Fat does supply one food essential, however—butter is high in Vitamin A, and this must be replaced. This can be done by supplementing the daily menus with one vitamin concentrate.

A balanced diet is more sensational than any food fad ever devised. It lets you use up useless fat and improve your health.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Washing baby's diapers is an all-important ceremony of the first year, and failure to care for them properly may cause the baby to suffer unnecessary penalties. Strong soaps left in diapers may cause the buttocks to become very red and sore, and baby will be miserable and cranky because of this.

Using soiled diapers again is unwise, though diapers which have been wet may be rinsed and used again if there are obviously no ill results of such a practise.

When the diaper is removed, rinse out any soil in the toilet and put it to soak in a pail of solution made of one tablespoon of vinegar and one quart of water. Put the wet ones in the same solution.

Each morning (or every second morning, if there are diapers enough) put them in a washing machine with a hot suds made of mild soaps or soap flakes or powders. Wash them well, rinse well and then put them outdoors to dry. When they cannot be dried outdoors rinse them the second time in boric-acid water made with about one tablespoon of boric acid solution to one quart of water. Rinse them out of this solution and let it dry on them. Once or twice a week boil all the diapers well.

When the diapers have not been so treated and the baby's buttocks have grown red and chapped, try the following method of soothing them. One of my readers, Mrs. D. L. P., found it in an old "baby" book and says it has proved more successful than any ointment or powder she ever has used. She writes in explanation: "I simply expose the bare buttocks to the direct rays of the sunlight for a few moments, timed by the clock. In winter, or on cloudy days, I use an ordinary electric-light globe on an extension cord and hold it a few inches from the baby's skin. This does almost as well. In just a few minutes the skin begins to lose some of its red look and it appears to be drier.

"Of course the underlying cause of the redness must be corrected but the above treatment does give prompt temporary relief and promotes healing."

This is splendid and would be a good treatment when improperly washed diapers were the cause of the redness. When the cause is an unbalanced diet, or lack of sufficient fluid, then these must be corrected before any local treatment can give permanent relief.

Our leaflet, "Ammoniacal Urine", offers still further suggestions for aid in the above condition. If you wish to have this free leaflet, send a three-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Eldred in care of the Your Baby and Mine Department of this newspaper.

Debunker

If someone told you that your brains were hollow, you would probably never dream that it was actually the truth. Inside every man's brain there are two large empty spaces, called ventricles, each of which is large enough to hold nearly half a cup full of liquid. Cerebro-spinal fluid normally fills them. So your brain is not all gray matter!

Other fallacies about brain include the idea that the brain grows throughout life (actually the number of brain cells becomes smaller each year); that any one uses all of his brain; and that nerve impulses travel "faster than lightning" (they travel about 125 yards a second—which would be "slow-motion" for lightning).

Minute Make-Ups

Wearing one of the new low-cut necklines? Throat looks sallow? Quick-pat on powder two shades lighter than the one you are using on your face. Thus you may bring throat and face into a harmony of tone.

Another quick trick is a fold of soft pink chiffon in the neck of a dark dress. It softens the skin tone. One of your large chiffon handkerchiefs will do.

But—begin bleaching your throat skin and toning it to stimulate circulation. Necklines are going to be down to—here!

Gay Victorian Footstool From Lowly Cake Boards

Doorstops Are The Legs

A delightful overstuffed footstool for your favorite chair! No one could suspect you'd made it with cake boards and doorstops!

Soy perky it looks, covered with flowered chintz and finished with a little frill. Or, if you'd rather be modern than Victorian, use black sateen and fringe.

Glue between your cake boards four wooden blocks equal distances apart. Cover with a heavy weight when the glue gets tacky. Next morning, screw underneath the blocks four doorstops for legs and paint them to match your color scheme.

And now for the fun of stuffing and covering your footstool. Cut a fat circle of cotton batting the same size as the footstool and then a smaller circle and another still smaller. Place the smallest circle on the stool first, finish with the largest.

Next cover batting with a circle of fabric large enough to be tacked to the bottom board. Take up fullness with small pleats and tack down firmly, finishing with the pretty frill.

Exact details of making this charming footstool are described in our 32-page booklet. Also tells simple, inexpensive ways to make attractive screens, smoking sets, other decorative objects.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Decorative and Useful Objects Everyone Can Make" to Home Service, The Edmonton Bulletin, 60 Front St., West, Toronto, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address and the Name of booklet.

What To Do

Please tell me all the niceties that should be observed at a formal dance. Just what does a girl say to a young man when he thanks her for the dance, and is every one expected to speak to the chaperons whether they know them or not? Thank you.

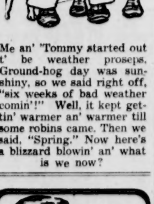

MISS G. B. I.

Answer—When a man thanks a girl for a dance—and by the way, a girl does not thank the man because it was he who received the favor and must do the thanking—the girl should say with a smile, "You are very welcome" or "I enjoyed the dance, too."

However, at the end of the evening, don't neglect to tell the man that you had a good time, but don't thank him for taking you out. You would naturally stop and talk to the chaperons some time during the evening. If you do not know them, introduce yourself.

Remember, too, that the dance floor is not the place to practice new steps. Otherwise, act as though you were having a good time and you are sure to have one, and to help others to have one, too. Good manners at any occasion are only consideration of others.

Service Flying Training School Opens, Manitoba

DAUPHIN, Man., March 6—(CP)—The No. 10 Service Flying Training School of the British Commonwealth Air Training plan opened here without fanfare after a number of pilots arrived by train Tuesday. Lectures began today.

Wing Commander A. H. Wilson, of Vancouver, is the officer commanding the school.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

Dear Miss Dix—I am 24 years of age and have a choice between marrying two men. One is on my own intellectual plane, but he is unable to make a living. In the five years that I have known him he has drifted from place to place without ever being able to hold a job. The other man is the same age, but he has made a tremendous progress, is at the head of a large firm and has an excellent income. However, in his anxiety to get ahead financially, he has overlooked the intellectual side of life and, although he has two or three years of college, he doesn't indicate it. Now which is the better bet, matrimonially speaking? The first man with whom I can speak, but who is a failure financially, or the second man, who is a success in business, even though there is an intellectual gulf between us? PUZZLED.

Answer:

I should say that your choice would depend on whether you prefer to feed your body or your soul. But whichever one of these men you marry, you will regret it and wish that you had chosen the other.

Suppose you take the intellectual man with whom you can discuss transcendental philosophy but not the grocery bill. You might enjoy a marvelous companionship with him if, alas and alack, you were not under the painful necessity of eating and having somewhere to lay your head and if custom did not require you to go about clothed.

About 29 days of the month that sort of a man would prove a most satisfactory husband, but on the 30th when the bills commenced coming in, when the landlord clamors for the rent and the butcher reminds you that your credit is exhausted; when all the other women have new frocks and you are so shabby that you are ashamed to be seen, why, then you will wish that you had married the man who didn't know so much about books and knew more about making a living.

Also, a woman is burned up by the knowledge that her husband cannot hold his own among other men. She gets sick and tired of sympathizing with a poor, unappreciated genius who can't sell his wares or turn his talents to any use.

On the other hand, a woman is bound to respect the man who succeeds in business, because it takes strength of character, it takes brains, it takes grit and courage and self-denial and the ability to win a place in the sun in the commercial world in this day of fierce competition.

And there is no gainsaying the fact that mighty few of us women really prefer plain living and high thinking to filet mignon and orchids. There are few books so absorbingly interesting as a cheque book.

So there you are. One of these men may feed your soul and the other your body. One may starve you, the other bore you. But between the two I should say that the best matrimonial bet is the go-getter, for you can find plenty of other people who can supply you with all the intellectual conversation you crave, but nobody but your husband is going to pay your board bill and shopping ticket.

But why marry either one of those men? Why not wait and find one who is both a highbrow and a money-maker? But one thing I charge you—whichever one you marry take him "as is". Don't bank on the dreamer with not being a good provider, and don't scorn the business man because he is shy on poetry. It isn't cricket.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

STUDENTS ARE SELECTED FOR VARSITY VOTE

Twenty-Two Candidates Contest Offices In Students' Union

Nominations closed Wednesday for positions in the 1941-42 students' council of the University of Alberta with 22 candidates standing for election next Wednesday, March 12. Six other nominations were acclaimed to posts on the council, while two other seats were left uncontested.

A traditional three-way fight for president of the U. of A. students' union is in the offing with Gerald Hutchinson of Duhamel, Bob Macbeth of Edmonton, and J. Delmar Foote of Didsbury all in the running. Macbeth is well-known locally as an athlete and youth work executive. He was president of the Victoria High School students' council in 1938.

CHOSEN BY ACCLAMATION

Acclamations were declared by Cec Robson, chief returning officer in the posts of secretary, Max D. Stewart of this city being the only nominee; secretary of the literary society, Louis Lebel, of St. Paul; and president of the Wauneita Society, Helen Warnock, of Castor.

Representatives already granted positions on the council due to acclamation are Clark Blackwood, Calgary, agriculture; Jim Gibb, Fort Saskatchewan, applied science; and Bob Torrance, Edmonton, arts.

No nominations were received for either the medical or the law representative to the students' council.

A close race for vice-president of the U. of A. students' union is in prospective with Secord Jackson and Nora McPhail, both of Edmonton; Ruth Rostrup of Carstairs, and Mary Lou Smith of Calgary all nominated.

Two nominees for treasurer are J. Blair Fulton of this city and Donald R. McCormick of Lacombe. Fulton was president of the literary association during the past season, while McCormick was president of the Philharmonic society.

The president of the literary association for the coming year will be picked from among James Ross; Roger Flumerfelt of Calgary, and Pat Blackstock, Edmonton. Both Flumerfelt and Blackstock have had leading roles in the past two University Philharmonic productions.

SPORTS BRANCH

Sammy Moscovich, of Lethbridge and Jack Yesta, Calgary, are the two nominees for the presidency of the Men's Athletic Association. Moscovich is a member of the Big Block "A" club, and has been a star performer with Varsity basketball clubs for several seasons. Yesta, an engineering student, has had much to do with intramural sport on the campus for the past two seasons.

Secretary-treasurer of men's athletics will be decided between Don C. Johnston of Calgary and Jack Flavin, Edmonton. Flavin is a prominent local swimmer and football player, while Johnston was a star with last season's Varsity Bears grid team.

In women's athletics Marg. Willox of Calgary and Mona Austbiene of Fernie, B.C. are running for president, while Chris. Willox, Calgary, and Doris Danner of Lacombe are slated to contest the secretary-treasurer's position.

For secretary of the Wauneita society, Kay Fergie, Cranbrook, B.C. and Gladys Vickery, Taber, have been nominated.

Campaigning has started already on the campus and will reach a climax next Tuesday morning when election speeches will be given by candidates in Convocation hall. Balloting will proceed on Wednesday, and first meeting of the new council will be held in April.

WELFARE WORK FOR SOLDIERS IS S.A. PLAN

On a general inspection tour of Salvation Army service Brigadier William Dray, war services secretary for the S. A. was in Edmonton Wednesday to visit the renovated and enlarged Red Shield hut at the garrison here.

Brig. Dray has been associated with the Salvation Army for the greater part of his life being for 25 years resident secretary for immigration at which time he did a great deal of travelling over the greater part of the Dominion, conferring with officials in connection with his work.

During his visit here Brig. Dray told The Bulletin that the first hut of the present conflict was built in Alberta in September, 1939, and since that time more than 100 have been constructed.

Among the more prominent of these "Sally Anns" as they are affectionately called by the men in war service, is one in operation at Halifax, N.S., for men of the Navy from all parts of Britain. Another at Debert, N.S., opened in December last, is believed to be the largest in Canada. Packed at every entertainment for their benefit, these huts are doing much to keep up the spirit of the men, Brig. Dray said.

The Edmonton hut, put up hurriedly with a view to immediate service has been enlarged and is a new state will have a seating capacity, in the auditorium alone, of 750 men, in addition to reading and game rooms and canteen. A large stage is also available. Since the war started, Brig. Dray stated, more

'U' STUDENTS ARE HOSTS TO LEGISLATORS

House Members Are Entertained at Banquet —Tour Buildings

Members of the Alberta legislature took time off from their duties to attend a special banquet sponsored by the University of Alberta students' council Wednesday night at Athabasca hall. All out-of-town members were given a chance to dine with students from their respective constituencies at this the first affair designed to afford provincial legislators an opportunity to meet with students in their "own" university setting.

Welcome to the M.L.A.'s was extended on behalf of the students by Jack Nellson, of Saskatoon, president of the U. of A. students' union, while official university greeting was given by Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, president of the university.

Dr. Kerr made special mention of the value of a university, with particular reference to its contributions to scientific discoveries at this time. He also noted several student affairs, items such as the continuance of inter-varsity sport.

H. H. Parlee, president of the Board of Governors of the university, told of the work of that board and the relationship between the government and the university.

Certain that students from the University of Alberta would become leaders in all walks of life was the thought that Premier William Aberhart left with the gathering as he made a brief address to the resident students. "Education and higher centres of edcation should be maintained at all costs," said the premier. "Canada needs men who can think for themselves."

In a speech directed at the "boys" J. H. Walker, leader of the opposition, invoked the students to continue their studies with such a vigor that "when you work—work" and "when you study—study."

Roger Flumerfelt, of Calgary, was guest soloist for the evening and also contributed to the program by leading a community singsong.

Following the banquet, members were taken on tours of the various buildings and laboratories on the campus, accompanied by students from their own constituencies and members of the students' council.

SCHOOL STUDENTS PRESENT PLAY AT EASTWOOD HIGH

Described as "one of the best-loved plays of the modern theatre," Eastwood high school students Wednesday evening presented "Outward Bound" to approximately 1,000 city students from local high schools.

The play will be repeated Thursday and Friday for adult audiences, the curtain rising at 8:15 p.m., with the orchestra taking its place at 8 p.m.

"Outward bound" deals with a conception of the hereafter as being a place very familiar to the world in which we now live except that everything wrong is righted and everything right is carried along much as it is at the present time. The plot is laid on ship-board and the play consists of three acts.

Students taking part in the play are Gordon Haliburton, June Burnup, Michael Zeweniuk, Robert Jackson, Jean McPherson, Frederick How, Shirley Higginson, James Gibb and Gordon Cockburn.

The play is directed by Miss Marian Gimby, teacher, assisted by Catherine Bentley and Archibald Waddell as stage manager. Properties were loaned by the Crescent Furniture Co. and assistance was given the students in their work by members of the Edmonton Little Theatre group.

McCoy Health Service

I receive so many letters from readers of this column for information on the subject of dropsy that I think the time is opportune to explain in as much detail as the space will permit, that dropsy is not a disease, but only a symptom of some condition in the body which is causing it. Dropsy occurs in a great variety of diseases and the amount of fluid accumulated in the various body cavities may vary from a small amount, to several quarts. The exact underlying cause is not difficult to discover in the majority of cases, and may be determined by a thorough examination. When the dropsical fluid accumulates in the abdominal region, the condition is then known as "ascites" and when it occurs in the serious cavities such as the eyelids, or in the fingers or the ankles, it is then called edema. The abdominal dropsy may also extend to a generalized dropsical condition throughout the body and this latter form is usually the result of failure of the heart muscles, certain forms of kidney disease, and in rare cases, in the severe anemias.

The principal causes of ordinary abdominal dropsy include valvular heart disease, diseases of the liver, including cirrhosis and abcess on the liver, acute and chronic Bright's disease (nephritis) and the presence of cysts or tumors.

Obstruction of the circulation through the veins is also a cause and obstruction or rupture of the lymphatic system will bring about the condition.

The chances of recovery of the patient depends upon the underlying cause of the dropsy, and to what extent this primary cause has advanced. Many patients, for example, with severe heart disorders often show striking and prompt improvement when placed on a proper diet and when placed on a regimen designed to build the general health.

Any treatment must be in the direction of correcting the primary cause and regardless of how much "tapping" of the watery fluid may be performed, it will accumulate again until the cause is treated properly.

My advice then, to all of those who suffer from dropsy, is to have a complete and thorough examination, after which the proper dietary may be prescribed, and rules of treatment followed out. Those readers interested in securing further information on the subject are invited to write for Dr. Frank McCoy's article entitled "Dropsy" Send your request to the McCoy Health Service enclosing a large self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in stamps and I will see that your copy is mailed promptly.

Questions and Answers

QUESTION—Mrs. W. B. writes: When playing ball the other day my son hurt his little finger. It is swollen, is hot to the touch, is black and blue on the inner surface and seems to stick out at a peculiar angle. He does not want to move it in any way. Can you tell me what should be done?

ANSWER—The safest plan in an injury of this kind is to have the finger examined to make sure there is no dislocation or break in the bone. By putting the hand under the fluoroscopic X-ray it may be quickly found if the bone is broken. In the meantime, soaking the hand in hot water will tend to reduce the pain and swelling.

QUESTION—Mr. T. D. writes: I am 30 pounds overweight and would like to reduce, but I hesitate to try a diet as I get a hungry feeling ever hour or so and just have to pick at something.

ANSWER—The hungry feeling you describe may be the result of gastritis and I suggest that you have an examination so that a suitable diet regimen may be outlined for you.

WAIT FOR ME

By KATHERINE MACY

BLONDE JAN MACLEOD, 20, caretaker's daughter on the ROBERT VAN VLIET Virginia estate, elopes with 21-year-old PETER VAN VLIET III, the owner's son. The couple go to New York City for their honeymoon but on the wedding night Peter gets a telephone call from AVIATOR JIM BROWNELL and explains to JAN that he has to leave her for a little while. "Wait for me, darling!" he says as he leaves the hotel room. On awakening the next morning Jan discovers Peter's bed has not been slept in. She telephones STEPHEN GARDNER, a newspaper reporter whom she met at the estate, and over breakfast she explains about Peter's having the hotel, but overlooks mentioning their marriage. Steve misunderstands and Jan, humiliated, rushes away from the table, telling him, whatever he is thinking he is wrong and she doesn't need his help. Steve apologizes and gets enough money to pay Jan's hotel bill and dismiss her to Hollymount. Arriving home, she finds her father, ROB had a heart attack and the doctor thinks he isn't going to pull through. Rob Macleod dies and Jan decides to return to New York and take a business course. Steve recommends that she live at Mother Mallo's rooming house where his sister, SUE, resides. He calls her for dinner her first night in New York, but remembering that she is Mrs. Peter Van Vliet, Jan says she is tired and Steve is offended. After several days of his silent treatment Jan realizes she has depended upon him and his friendship more than she had realized. Jan asks Steve to find JIM BROWNELL, so she can tell Mr. Van Vliet of Peter's whereabouts. Steve calls for Jan, and they go to the Van Vliet house. Steve reveals that Peter tried to enlist in the Canadian air corps but was thwarted in his attempt to do so. Jan sees the story later in the newspaper and says she's never going to speak to Steve again. After a reconciliation, Steve tells Jan he loves her. Peter and Jim Brownell, he announces, took off from somewhere on the Canadian coast, bound for France.

Steve settled back in the cab. "Well, now we can sit back and wait for the news," he said. "It shouldn't be long."

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

NOW that he had told her, Steve sat back and went on with his dinner nonchalantly. Jan sat perfectly still. He put down his fork after a moment and said quietly, "It is unquestionably true, Jan. The mechanic told me the whole story. They have enough gas to make it, with any luck, and Jim Brownell is a good pilot, none better. They'll get there safely."

"And then what?" asked Jan through dry lips.

"I expect they will try to get into the French air corps. Can they? I haven't the vaguest notion. As far as this country goes, it seems our diplomats have a sort of hands-off policy about such enlistments."

"They won't help Peter and Jim to join the French army, but they probably wouldn't stand in their way unless someone, such as the senior Van Vliet, insists on it.

WILL ARRIVE

"Now that the story has broken on both sides of the Atlantic, Peter and Jim will arrive in a blaze of publicity, which may or may not be in their favor.

"Jim doesn't have anything to lose. He's always considered himself a soldier of fortune, and busts in the limelight. One way or another, he'll get into this war, Peter and I don't know. His father can stop him if he puts enough pressure on the right people."

"But you do know some of the people on the staff, butler and so on?" And, as she nodded, "There must be a service entrance. I don't want any of the boys to spot me. Stay close, and don't let them see your face."

Steve turned up his coat collar and Jan shrank along beside him, her face turned away from the light.

They saw, as they came closer to the house, that it was not set back by jowl with the next, but that a narrow walk separated them.

Steve silently steered her toward it and the men who were talking only a few feet away did not look in their direction.

JAN WHISPERS

"The kitchen is probably in the basement," whispered Jan as they kept close to the wall. "If the cook is in, she'll know me."

They went down two steps and rapped softly on a blank door. No sound for a moment, and Steve knocked more loudly. They heard steps on a cement floor, and a sudden frame of light showed a large woman in a green uniform. Jan breathed, "It's Jan Macleod, Rhoda. Can we come in?"

"Praise be for that!" said the cook devoutly. "Don't let any of those reporters in. Morton has orders to stop them from bothering Mr. Van Vliet."

"Then he's here? May we see him?"

The telephone was ringing as they went up to the library. No one was answering it. Robert Van Vliet was sitting at the desk, oblivious of the phone only a foot away from him. He looked up at them and said, "Jan, this time we've got to stop him and bring him back."

CAN'T DECIDE

Under his hand was a welter of newspapers which overflowed on to the floor. These," he said looking down at them, "say that Peter and Jim have started to fly to France. I heard it on the radio, too, and I feel so . . . so stupid, Jan, but I simply cannot make up my mind what to do about it. They are out over the ocean somewhere, I cannot reach them. They have no radio. They are out of touch with everyone in the world."

His words were coming in short gasps as if he were forcing them out.

He was so obviously unstrung that Jan was startled and shocked. She started toward him, but he continued, "All those reporters out there." he said vaguely. "I can't talk to them. Tell Morton to send them away."

"He is telling them that, Mr. Van Vliet" said Jan.

Steve interposed gently, "I am one of those reporters myself sir, but I assure you my coming here had nothing to do with my paper."

Robert looked at him uncertainly. "Oh, you came here with Jan the other time. It doesn't matter. They'll print what they want to, anyway."

"May I suggest," said Steve, "that you have Morton tell them that you cannot say anything until you have had direct word from your son? And that, for further information, they may see someone else, your lawyer, for instance?"

FACE CLEARS

Robert's face cleared slightly. "Yes, yes, that's a good idea." He called the butler and gave him the message. Steve said under his breath to Jan, "My colleagues would cut my throat if they knew I was responsible for this!"

Jan flashed him a look of gratitude. When the butler had gone, Rob turned to her. He seemed to have recovered his poise somewhat. "Fania . . . Mrs. Van Vliet . . . is in Nassau," he said. "Until this uncertainty about Peter is over, I feel the need of some moral support, Jan. There's only one thing to do: wait. I'd rather not do it alone. I . . . oh, well, I suppose it wouldn't be feasible to ask you to stay here."

Jan hesitated. "It's good of you to ask me," she said finally, "but I really don't think I could help you very much. I'll keep in touch with you."

"Of course. Fania will come back as soon as she hears. Meantime I am cabling the American Embassy in Paris, but that is the best I can do now."

DRAWN CURTAINS

The reporters were gone when they left the house. Morton's words had dispersed them. No, that was wrong, thought Steve, one of them lingered. Hap Howard, his own photographer, who was staring wistfully up at the drawn curtains on the second floor.

Steve nudged him, and Hap jumped. "How in blazes did you get in?" he asked in astonishment. "Hello, Miss Macleod. Have you put the jinx on our business again?"

Steve said, "Nothing doing, anyway. The old man won't talk. Come on, Jan, let's find a cab and finish our dinner."

RAN AFTER THEM

Hap ran after them. "Mean to say you're not getting a story of any sort out of this?"

"What story? Run along and peddle your papers, little boy." And as the photographer stared in open-mouthed outrage, they got into the taxi and sped away.

Steve settled back in the cab. "Well, now we can sit back and wait for news. It shouldn't be long."

Shouldn't it? Wait. How much longer? One month . . . two months . . . since she had seen Peter. How many more months must she wait for him?

CITY TO SEEK POWER ASSESS OUTSIDE ZONE

Aldermen Consider Tax Rate In Territory Is Too Low

Edmonton's city council will seek an amendment to the city charter to permit the assessing of property in the city's outer zone at a tax rate of not less than half of the general tax rate applicable to inner zone city propert, if a recommendation of the finance committee is accepted.

Decision to recommend that city council seek the charter amendment was made by the finance committee on a motion of Ald. A. Blair Paterson after city commissioners had intimated that the average tax paid by burgesses resident in the outer zone was $20 while the educational facilities provided for these districts must approximately $80 annually for each pupil.

APPLY FOR AMENDMENT

The resolution passed by the committee was that "it is recommended that the city council apply for an amendment to section 333, sub-section 2 of the city charter to provide the right to assess the rate for outer zone areas at not less than the half of the general tax rate applicable to city property with power to vary upwards such rate in any district as may be decided by resolution of the city council."

The present tax rate on property in the outer zone is fixed at 20 mills, and aldermen were of the opinion this was too low, especially in view of the cost of the educational services being rendered in the districts.

ORDER EXPIRES

City commissioners were instructed to obtain information on the taxation rates of property situated adjacent to Edmonton's outer zone. Opinion was expressed by aldermen that these rates were considerably higher than the 20 mill rate prevailing in Edmonton's outer zone.

The present outside zone rate of 20 mills was set by order of the Alberta Board of Public Utilities on areas of eight acres and over, and was incorporated in the city's charter. The order of the board expired on December 31, 1940.

CRITIC STATES ART EXHIBIT OF HIGH STANDARD

Evan Greene, well-known Alberta artist and critic, was among many who were impressed by the art exhibition of Eric Freifeld at the Macdonald hotel this week. He declared the show to be "the recent development of one of Edmonton's youngest and most inspired artists."

"It has been truly said by English critics, of the artist Eric Freifeld," Mr. Greene continued, "that for an artist of his years he is in remarkable command of his medium—water color."

"In his line moods we find the same straight forward purpose—a consciousness of significant line and form. But they, unlike his water colors, are limited by the restrictions of portraiture. It is, however, in his water colors that he gives his best interpretation. Indeed there are those that are not even interpretative but purely creative, as in the picture No. 19 which is an imaginative piece of architecture.

"It is in such works that Mr. Freifeld reveals his artistry—a unity of architectural conception—each part of which, complete in itself contributes to the unity of the whole picture."

"Mr. Freifeld is a young man with an unusual singleness of purpose and a wide creative ability. He is deserving of all the encouragement he will get."

Red Cross Help Given By Church

Edmonton Red Cross branch has received $18.50 from the Russian St. Mary's Greek Orthodox church of Leduc, officials announced Thursday. This brings their total donations to over $70. Those attending the choir's concert at the time the $18.50 was raised had to drive as far as 22 miles through extremely cold weather. Other farmers, learning of the concerts, have co-operated splendidly in raising funds, the officials said.

Alberta Varsity Is At War As Students, Faculty In Service

Marks Birthday

MR. JUSTICE W. R. HOWSON, who was the recipient of congratulations from brother jurists and members of the Edmonton bar on attaining his 58th birthday Thursday. Born at Norwood, Ont., on March 6, 1883, he has spent most of his life in Alberta. He started his business career with the Bank of Montreal and was serving as manager of the bank's Stirling, Ont., branch when the call of the west came to him. He came west to attend the University of Alberta law school. He practised law in Edmonton, rising to high eminence in his profession in this province before being elevated to the supreme court bench. Mr. Justice Howson takes a keen interest in farming, and horsebreeding and has some of the finest Belgian horses in Alberta on his farm north of the Fort Saskatchewan road. Recently he has been a constant exhibitor at Alberta Class A fairs and has captured many ribbons with his purebred horses.

Canada at war means the University of Alberta is also at war. Nine undergraduates and three graduates have joined active service units in the past week. There have been many changes in faculty personnel in the student body, and in day-to-day routine at the university.

Many of the academic staff are helping in their professional capacity, and for that reason the faculty of medicine has been the most affected. Dean A. C. Rankin, former dean of that faculty and professor of bacteriology, is now director of hygiene, national defence headquarters, Ottawa. Miss Macleod, who was director of the school of nursing, is now serving overseas. Dr. R. T. Washburn, superintendent of the University hospital, supervised the No. 4 clearing station before returning to his work at the hospital.

Others from that faculty on war service include Capt. Robert L. Scharff, Dr. K. Hamilton, Maj. M. Weinlos, Capt. C. H. W. Weinlos, Capt. R. W. Bradley, professor of operative dentistry, and Maj. Kenneth Hamilton.

Former lecturer in the faculty of law, H. A. Dyde is special assistant to the minister of air at Ottawa; Dr. Vladimir Ignatieff, former professor of soils, is with the Calgary Highlanders in Calgary; Dr. C. A. Stirling, Ont., branch when the call of the west came to him. He came west to attend the University of Alberta law school. He practised law in Edmonton, rising to high eminence in his profession in this province before being elevated to the supreme court bench. Mr. Justice Howson takes a keen interest in farming, and horsebreeding and has some of the finest Belgian horses in Alberta on his farm north of the Fort Saskatchewan road. Recently he has been a constant exhibitor at Alberta Class A fairs and has captured many ribbons with his purebred horses.

Men joining the Calgary Tank Regiment were 2nd Lieut. Marcel Lambert, of Edmonton, who was Friday editor of The Gateway university undergraduate newspaper; 2nd Lieut. Donald F. Cameron, Edmonton; 2nd Lieut. Douglas McD. Bell, Revelstoke; Stanley Wolfe, Edmonton, and graduates Jack Dunlap and Douglas Sharp, both of Stettler.

The navy has taken Sub-Lt. Bruce Rankin, of Saskatoon; Sub-Lt. Richard Matthews, Calgary, and graduate Jack Dewis, of Canmore who was president of the university students' union last year.

George Morris, Lethbridge arts and dentistry student, has joined the dental corps. Cameron Hay and Hugh Blue, of Edmonton, have enlisted in the air force.

Graduates, undergraduates and ex-students are enlisted all the world in war work. Even in Canada their addresses range from Jervis Bay, Vancouver, to Truro, N.S., and in such different types of work as the Wireless School, Calgary, to the Psychology Testing Division, R.C.A.F., Toronto.

Two nursing sisters, Q.M. Esdale and Mary Loggin, are also overseas.

HALF BILLION BARRELS OIL ARE FORESEEN

alta the tar sands and, lastly, the oil wells.

"During the next few years," he said, "I hope to see and help bring about the addition of fuel resources by the discovery of oil fields which will help Alberta secure its place in the petroleum sun for a long time to come."

Speaking of conservation, he said, "Conservation is good, hard business. It makes it possible to obtain a greater utilization and recovery of our natural resources.

MOST IMPORTANT

Petroleum conservation, he said, is more important than forest or soil conservation as petroleum resources cannot be replaced.

Alberta should have at least three times its present known reserves of petroleum now in sight to be level with the present consumption rate in the province.

"Conservation is not hoarding," he said. "It is the effective production for beneficial use without waste of a resource.

"We have amply demonstrated that, if a well produces a given percentage of its total production in the first year, the amount of oil left in the ground irrecoverable is proportionate to that year's production."

GOVERNMENT HELPING

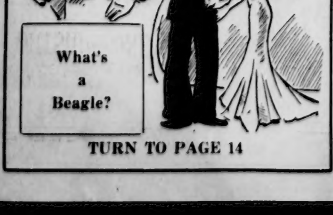

The Alberta government, he said, is doing all it can, short of actual subsidizing, to aid the search for new oil fields. It has conferred with the producers and determined what is necessary to encourage sincere and earnest development and has taken the necessary steps.

Money must be spent, he said, for geological and geophysical work and for the actual drilling of wells if new fields are to be discovered.

Alberta Varsity Student Honored

Word has been received here that Gordon R. Finley, who is on an assistantship in chemistry at Cornell University, has been made an honorary member of the Honorary Society of Phi Kappa Phi. Mr. Finley received his master's degree from the University of Alberta after winning a Tegler scholarship. He also received his B.Sc. degree here in honors chemistry.

AGENT FACES CONSPIRACY COUNT HERE

Preliminary Hearing Given Insurance Adjustment Case

Preliminary hearing of charges against insurance adjusters in city police court continued Thursday, when conspiracy and false pretences charges against Arthur R. Lilly, involving $43.86, opened before Magistrate Millar.

According to testimony of crown witnesses, accused conspired with F. Fielhaber, former book-keeper for Fare-Robinson auto repair, to obtain that sum by false pretences from the Cornhill Insurance Co. Ltd. The claim was allegedly made on a car owned by D. McLennan and damaged in an accident near Wetaskiwin in February, 1937.

According to Fielhaber, repairs to the car amounted to $19.33, but in a claim to the insurance company, after an adjustment made by Lilly, bill for $66.86 was submitted.

$25 DEDUCTED

Cross-examined by Crown Counsel Neil D. Maclean, K.C., Fielhaber said the insurance company paid $43.86, after deducting $25 as provided by the deductible clause in the policy. When asked if the account was raised to cover the deductible and give $20 to Mr. Lilly, J. F. Lymburn, K.C., announced at the noon adjournment he would like to study his notes in order to shorten the cross-examination of Fielhaber.

The hearing is continuing.

A. R. Lilly was remanded to stand trial in supreme criminal court by Magistrate Millar in police court Wednesday afternoon after a preliminary hearing on a charge of theft of $35 from the London Assurance Company of Montreal, while acting as an agent of the company.

According to evidence put in by Crown Prosecutor Neil D. Maclean, K.C., a claim for $457 was paid by the London Assurance Co. Ltd., for a car belonging to A. Elder of this city, destroyed by fire in 1937. In adjusting the claim, Lilly is alleged to have written the insurance company that he was attempting to sell the car for salvage.

A. F. Archer, auto salvage dealer, testified he paid Mr. Lilly $80 for the car.

Later Lilly is alleged to have written the insurance company stating he was able to obtain $50 for the car from a salvage firm. With $5 deducted for expenses, accused forwarded $45 to the insurance company in payment for the salvage, correspondence from the adjuster's files showed.

The crown alleges the $35 difference between the $80 Archer said he paid for the car, and the $45 sent the insurance company, was stolen.

Beulah Home Gives City $5,000 For Utility Extension

Legacy from the Crafis estate of $5,000 to the Beulah Home has been turned over to the city of Edmonton in payment of the sewer and water extension carried out in 1939 in co-operation with the provincial government.

In the fall of 1935 the question of disposal of sewage at the home became so serious that the medical health authorities had to intervene and insisted on provision of more adequate sewage disposal. The board of the Beulah Home approached the city and, "as usual, found the civic authorities very sympathetic to the needs of the work being carried on," according to a report made by the Beulah Home.

As a result of a conference with city commissioners, arrangements were made to connect the home with the city's sewage system. This involved quite a large expenditure and the home agreed to endeavor to raise $5,000 toward the cost.

Owing to the war and other related appeals, it was found that an appeal to the public for the money would not be successful, and it was agreed with the city commissioners to turn over to the city the rights of the Beulah Home to the legacy.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. from Foster and McGarvey's funeral chapel. Rev. S. H. Irving will officiate and interment will be made in the Edmonton plot in the Edmonton cemetery. Foster and McGarvey, funeral directors are in charge of arrangements.

COL. ANDERSON IS HONORED BY RED CHEVRONS

Members of the Edmonton Red Chevron club Wednesday night gathered at the Corona to pay tribute to their honorary president, Lt. Col. Pete Anderson, D.S.O., who leaves the city this week to take up residence in Vancouver for reasons of health.

The well known Edmonton war veteran was presented with a purse of silver, and a box of chocolates for Mrs. Anderson, by President George Turner, on behalf of the members. Prior to this the chairman called on several of the more prominent members to make brief reminiscences on the Colonel's career. Those who spoke were: Past Presidents David Collyer and A. E. Nightingale, Sr., Lt. Col. H. B. Jamieson, officer commanding the 101st Edmonton Fusiliers, C.A.M.C., and W. R. McLaren, provincial president of the Canadian Legion.

In his reply Col. Anderson thanked the members and expressed his satisfaction at having enjoyed such a long association with the Red Chevrons. He also told several "yarns" of his military career.

The chairman stated that the club "Will miss old Pete. He's a good soldier and a good comrade and we wish him good fortune, good luck and good-bye."

Arrangements were made at the meeting for the 2nd annual banquet in celebration of the second battle of Ypres. The banquet will be held Saturday, April 19, at the Royal George hotel, and it is hoped that Col. F. C. Jamieson, V.D., K.C., from the Red Deer military training centre will be guest speaker.

Taxpayers' Group Will Meet Friday On Rent Control

F. W. Race, secretary of the Edmonton Taxpayers Protective Association, announced Thursday that the annual meeting will be held Friday at 8 p.m. in the I.O.O.F. hall, 10134 - 101 street.

Mr. Race said that members will be asked to give their views on the question of application by Edmonton for inclusion in the federal rent control legislation, now applying in other western cities, including Calgary. The council has been asked here by the Local Council of Women and the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council.

Other matters to come under discussion include the annual city expenditure of $1,000 to $4,000 in an enumeration of voters, and the reduction or rebate of taxes when property is vacant.
